Tobey's Son Heads Pledged Delegates; Senator Announces Personal Support

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

The presidential boom for Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower took on a "practical" aspect last night.

Senator Charles W. Tobey (R., N. H.) announced his all-out support of Eisenhower for the Republican nomination for President, saying he was the best qualified man to lead the Nation and predicting he could win in November by "a great popular vote."

In New Hampshire, a full slate of delegates pledged to "Ike" was entered in the State's presidential preference primary, which takes place March 9. Charles W. Tobey, jr., son of the Senator, headed the slate.

First of Primaries

The New Hampshire primary is the first to be held in the country.

Up until now, this curtain-raiser was expected to be merely a test of strength between Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York and former Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota. Slates of delegates for them also filed in Concord yesterday.

With General Eisenhower in the New Hampshire primary, the contest could become a dramatic battle that might have a powerful influence on the Republican National Convention next June.

Ike has insisted that he is not a candidate. He has said he would not authorize anybody to "run" him and would not connive in any way to get the nomination. However, he has never said he would not take the nomination, and politicians have assumed therefore that he was "receptive."

Test of Attitude

If he does nothing to head off a test of strength between himself and Dewey and Stassen in New Hampshire, assumption will give way to conviction and Ike will be regarded as an entry in the '48 sweepstakes.

Senator Tobey told a reporter he did not know Eisenhower personally and know no more than the general public about his views on national and international questions. He said he was supporting him because he felt Ike could "unify the country."

The New Hampshire lawmaker, who frequently has been at odds with other Senate Republicans, announced that he had accepted a directorship in the Draft Eisenhower League, which has its headquarters in New York. He was the first big-name Republican in Congress to take such a step.

"For some time," he said in a statement, "I have been giving serious thought as to which man of the several possible and actual candidates for the Republican

Hatch Urges Political Truce On Two Issues

Suggests One Policy Group Settle Course On Aid and Inflation

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

A political truce on the two great issues before the country—European recovery and inflation control—was proposed in the Senate yesterday by Senator Carl A. Hatch (D., N. Mex.).

Hatch, a close friend of President Truman, told the Senate the country is "sick and tired of politics taking precedence over the country's welfare."

"Why not strike out that party line (on foreign policy and inflation control) and have agreement between and with the two (Democratic and Republican) policy committees," he said.

"United States Policy Committee"

"Unite them for this purpose—have one policy committee for the Nation."

Acting Senate Republican Leader Kenneth S. Wherry (R., Nebr.) praised the "high purpose" Hatch had in mind. But before Wherry took his seat the Senate was merrily debating 1948 presidential candidacies.

With many a jibe and jest, Democrats took out after Senator Robert A. Taft when Wherry introduced for the record Taft's bitter radio attack on the President's message on the state of the Union.

Wherry defended Taft, then strafed Democratic vice presidential possibilities. It all ended when Senator Charles W. Tobey (R., N. H.) begged Wherry "not to begin enumerating the names of the prospective candidates for President and Vice President."

"If that is done we shall not get through until the early morning hours," said the man who once quipped that a pebble tossed from the gallery would be certain to hit a presidential candidate.

After the good-humored 1948 round, Hatch told reporters he will continue to press his proposal to end partisan politics on foreign policy and inflation. He said he tapped sentiment in the Democratic policy committee and found it favorable.

Briefly his plan is this: Members of both party policy committees would sit in with the Foreign Affairs Committee in hearings on European Recovery. They would

Challenged to Tell Those Not Already On Anderson List

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Harold E. Stassen, Republican presidential aspirant, yesterday charged that a group of about 11 Government "insiders" had made four million dollars speculating in commodities.

He refused, however, to divulge the names of any except Edwin W. Pauley, Ralph K. Davies and Brig. Gen. Wallace H. Graham—all names previously revealed as market traders by Secretary of Agriculture Anderson.

He charged that Pauley had not made a full disclosure of his operations when he recently appeared before a Senate committee, and that Graham was "not truthful" in his remarks about his trading. Graham, he said, did not leave the market on October 7, as he had stated. He was still dealing, Stassen said, until Stassen charged that members of the executive staff of the Government were speculating in grain on December 10.

Pauley is special assistant to Secretary of the Army Kenneth Royall; Davies resigned last December as deputy petroleum administrator for war; Graham is personal physician for President Truman.

Challenged by Anderson

Stassen's testimony before a Senate Appropriations Subcommittee immediately was challenged by Anderson. Anderson said that if Stassen had names of more Government officials who had been speculating, it was his public duty to reveal them.

"Whenever we reveal the names of any Government employes who have been in the market," Anderson said, "Stassen points at them and says: 'That's whom I mean.'"

Stassen charged that Pauley alone had cleared a profit of almost a million dollars.

He alleged that a study of the "pattern of Pauley's tradings" be made to see how closely it followed the Government's program of allocations and purchases of the same commodities.

He tied up some of Pauley's dealings to the period last August when former Postmaster General Hannegan and Secretary Anderson were Pauley's guests at Cocoanut Island Club, International, at Honolulu. Hannegan, he said, was there when Pauley bought 100,000 bushels of wheat futures on August 12, and that Anderson was

D. C. Traffic Safety School Has 13 'Pupils'

Score of Spectators Also Attend 2-Hour Opening Session

The District's new school for traffic violators got under way last night.

Thirteen serious "students" and a score of interested spectators gave undivided attention to police and civilian instructors through the two-hour session.

Municipal Building with a brief

The class began at 8 in the introduction by Inspector Arthur E. Miller, head of the Metropolitan Police Traffic Division.

Inspector Miller, who said the school was being conducted on a six-month trial basis, declared the "students" were not there as "punishment". They were there, he said, of their own choice, to learn driving laws and regulations.

Sgt. Walter R. Ostrom, of the Accident Investigation Unit, led off with a lecture on rules and regulations, and discussed driver's permits, registration cards, vehicle inspection, D. C. speed limits and stops and turns.

The students, some taking notes, many leaning forward to catch everything the sergeant said, learned, among other things, the

Vandenberg Insists Aid Be Practical

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.) warned yesterday that the Marshall Plan would be "sunk without trace" unless the American people felt it would be run "in a business way."

He told Ambassador Lewis W. Douglas, the State Department's sole witness before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, that "a new element of business administration" must be injected into the European Recovery Program to win public confidence.

He chided Douglas for not having put more stress on business management in his five hours' effort to explain the program. It was the second time in two days that Vandenberg had shown himself dissatisfied with the Government's proposed scheme for managing the 4¼-year, 17-billion-dollar recovery effort.

Seeks 3 Other Changes

Apart from his doubts on this score, Vandenberg indicated he would seek at least three other changes in the proposed legislation.

First, he thought the bill should contain what he called "a categorical statement that the continuity of United States aid is dependent on the continuity of European cooperation and self-help."

He conceded that this thought was implicit in the draft bill submitted to Congress by President Truman last month, but he felt it should be stated directly.

Second, he thought the bill should provide for the labeling and other identification of American goods sent to Europe as free grants under the plan. This condition was laid down in the recent interim-aid bill, and Douglas said he saw no reason why it should not be in this one.

Differs on Appointments

Third, he felt the new administrator of the recovery agency in Washington should have power to "recommend" the choice of American "economic cooperation officers" to be attached to American embassies in each of the 16 participating countries. As the draft bill now stands, the Secretary of State would appoint them "in consultation with" the administrator.

Still another possible change, suggested by Senator Tom Connally (D., Tex.) would prohibit the

Two-Way Action

U. S. Mediterranean Fleet Holds Maneuvers Off Greece

Turkey to Get Four American Submarines, 11 Other Vessels

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

The United States revealed yesterday that it is transferring to Turkey 4 submarines and 11 other war vessels particularly adapted for defense of the Dardenelles.

Following hard on the heels of other American action aiding anti-Communist forces in the eastern Mediterranean, the move was interpreted as another warning to Soviet Russia that we will oppose any Red effort to take over the strategic area.

Only last week the State Department announced that seven surplus American minesweepers had been sold to Turkey and 11 other to Greece at bargain rates.

One thousand Marines, equipped with tanks, field guns and flame-throwers, left Monday to join United States warships now in Greek and Italian ports.

Yesterday's transfer was ordered under authority to extend 100 million dollars in military aid to Turkey, voted by Congress last spring.

The warships include the 1500-ton, long-range submarines Brill, Blueback, Boarfish and Chub, eight motor minesweepers, one net-laying vessel, one repair ship and a gasoline tanker.

All particularly fit Turkey's defense needs, which aim at dis-

Big Carrier Midway And Three Cruisers Display Their Might

By Dougald Werner

Athens, Jan. 9 (U.P.).—The United States Mediterranean Fleet has started maneuvers during which warships and planes may carry out battle exercises within sight of strife-ridden Greece, it was announced today.

The announcement followed by one day the news that a brigadier general and 20 lieutenant colonels from the U. S. Army and Air Force would arrive within a few days to advise the Greek army how to subdue the Communist-led guerillas.

In announcing that the Mediterranean Fleet started exercises on Wednesday that will last until January 16, Comdr. Morton Sunderland, U. S. naval attache here, did not say whether Marine Corps detachments now en route to the Mediterranean would take part.

Sunderland called the maneuvers "routine training exercises" in the Mediterranean and in the Ionian Sea, off Greece's southwestern coast. The fleet, under the command of Vice Admiral B. H. Bieri, include the aircraft carrier Midway, the cruisers Portsmouth, Providence and Little Rock, the destroyers Dyess and O'Leary and other vessels.

Military authorities at Patras announced that a guerilla force landed from boats at the village of Zarhoula on the northern coast of the Peloponnesus yesterday and that

Arab Force From Syria Beaten Off In Palestine

600 Guerillas Hit Two Towns, Blast Water Facilities; British Send Aid

Jerusalem, Jan. 9 (AP).—Six hundred Arab guerillas—in the first major invasion across the Palestine border from Syria—attacked two Jewish settlements in Upper Galilee today and were beaten off by British troops and planes, the government said.

The British administered government disclosed that it had asked its Minister n Syra to make representatons to the Syrian government.

For 3½ hours the battle swirled around the settlements of Kfar Szold and Dan before reinforced British troops supported by artillery and RAF Spitfires brought the situation under control. Reports from the area said sporadic firing was continuing.

Three Jews Killed

Three Jews were killed and eight wounded in the Arab attacks which centered on a finger of Palestine extending northward between Syria and Lebanon.

According to some unconfirmed reports the operation was directed by Fawdi Bey al Kaukji, leader of the bloody uprising of Arabs in Palestine a decade ago.

He has been described as a commander of the Arab People's Army, the volunteer guerilla force recently organized in Arab countries to fight Holy Land partition.

(Arab informants in Cairo expressed belief the attackers were not members of the People's Army but were Palestinian youths who have been training in Syria. They said the force probably was that of Abou Ibrahim al Saghir, also one of the leaders of the 1936 Palestine revolt.)

Blast Water Facilities

After firing from the Syrian hills near the border and from Tel el Quadi, the Arabs penetrated into Palestine and threaded their way between the Jewish settlements, the British army said. The invaders blasted water installations, particularly the pumps at Dan, Biblical northern boundary of the Holy Land.

Jewish informants declared the invaders sped across the frontier in trucks and struck in two waves at the settlements. British troops rushed into the battle area from Metullah, a northern frontier post. The original British contingent was reinforced with a short time.

British troops sent to Dan were fired upon from the hills, the army said. Other troops broke through an Arab road block and found Kfar Szold surrounded by Arabs.

More Explosives, Combat Knives Seized

Asbury Park, N. J., Jan. 9 (AP).—Police authorities confiscated today a cache of 5200 combat knives and all but 80 tons of a 199-ton consignment of surplus Army explosives which they said had been gathered by Zionists for illegal shipment to Palestine.

Three trucks containing 60 tons of highly explosive cyclonite blocks were seized this afternoon in Ulster County, N. Y., after police uncovered a cache of 59 tons last night in a warehouse at Asbury Park and in a farmhouse at nearby Wall Township. The combat knives, made originally for the United States Navy, were found in the warehouse here today.

$85,000 Gift To Go Toward Playground

Intent of Stead's Will Interpreted By District Court

An $85,000 gift will go to the District Recreation Depatment to help found and maintain a big playground in the vicinity of 17th and P sts. nw., according to a ruling by Associate Justice F. Dickinson Letts in District Court yesterday.

The funds are to be derived from property left by Robert Stead, Washington architect, who died in Philadelphia in 1943.

Under the terms of the will, 3 acres of land at 14th st. and Pennsylvania ave. se. were to be used as a playground in memory of Stead's first wife, Mary Force Stead.

Area Adequately Served

In the interim between the filing of Stead's will and the present, additional playgrounds were built in the neighborhood of 14th st. and Pennsylvania ave. se., and the District sought to have the playground site changed and income from the original bequest used in the new venture.

A group of Stead's heirs contested the request, maintaining that if the original location were not to be used for a playground, they

U. S. Stand Hit On Anti-Negro Realty Pacts

Home Owner Lawyers Defend Covenants In High Court Brief

By Dillard Stokes
Post Reporter

Counsel for home owners who hope to enforce anti-Negro covenants lashed out yesterday at the Government's stand in the cases.

Atorneys Henry Gilligan and James A. Crooks gave the Supreme Court a biting brief, in answer to one filed by Attorney General Tom C. Clark and Solicitor General General Philip B. Perlman.

The covenants are private contracts, made by land owners, providing that certain races, or groups, are not to own, use or live on the land. Some covenants are for a term of years, some are forever. Covenants mostly are aimed at Negroes, but they are in force against Jews, Indians, Mexicans, Japanese, Chinese, Greeks and many others.

Covenants Have Been Enforced

The courts here and in many States have enforced the covenants, by ordering Negroes, and others, to move out of property they bought. A group of such colored home buyers have asked the Supreme Court to declare the covenants against the law, the Constitution and the public policy. The case is due to be heard next week, with Solicitor General Perlman opening the fight against the covenants.

Besides the Government, 22 other groups which are not in the case filed briefs, nearly all of them against the covenants.

Attorneys Gilligan and Crooks yesterday passed over the others, to aim all their fire at the Government. Clark and Perlman, they said, claimed to be acting for the civil rights of the people, but gave no thought to the rights of the white home owners who wanted the covenants enforced.

Shortage Quoted

The Government—the Gilligan-Crooks brief said—"is asserting that the Negro petitioners and Negroes generally have rights superior to and beyond white citizens."

The Government quoted several letters about the housing shortage, and filed copies of the letters with the Supreme Court clerk. Gilligan and Crooks called on the Attorney General to file—as well—copies of

Hat Rentals Set French Fashion Industry on Ear

Paris, Jan. 9.—Mme. La Comtesse Monique de la Moissoniere, a 6-foot, honey-blonde noblewoman from Normandy, is setting the French fashion industry on its ear today with a circulating hattery for France's impoverished aristocrats.

Members of the syndicate of modistes, who sell high-style headgear at 9000 to 12,000 francs ($75 to $100), are irate at Mme. la Comtesse's presumption in renting out her individually modeled chapeaux to all comers for an average of 500 francs ($4.17) for 24 hours, or three hats a week for 3300 francs ($27.50) a month.

The scheme nets her $400 a week from the 100 hats she keeps in circulation. After 10 wearings she ships them off to a bargain outlet in North Africa.

Of course, if a subscriber wants to keep a particularly fetching hat the countess will sell it—at a ceiling price of 6000 francs ($50).

Inspection Centers On Fallen Girder And Collapsed Pier

Members of the inquiry board in the Empire Building collapse yesterday made an inspection of the disaster scene at 9th st. and New York ave. nw.

Their spot check centered on the wreckage of a steel and masonry beam across the ceiling of the ground floor office, occupied by the City Finance Co. when the building partially collapsed December 16.

Following the inspection yesterday, which lasted about 2½ hours, Stewart Beall, chairman of the investigating board, said only that "our investigation found the existing situation in accordance with plans of the building we were able to piece together."

Two persons who worked in the first-floor office have testified that about 30 hours before the collapse they noticed a crack across a masonry pier supporting the beam in question.

Engineer Commissioner Gordon R. Young accompanied the five-man board on the inspection trip.

They saw that a heavy girder, encased in masonry, had partially broken lose from the wall at one end of the structure, while the other end of the girder—resting on the masonry pier—had fallen to the floor.

This is believed to be the point of collapse, which brought down apartments on the second and third floors, killing four people and injuring 12 others.

Nick Papanicolas, owner of the structure, and George Papanicolas, his attorney-brother, also were on the scene yesterday. The latter said they were engaged in making their own investigation.

Union Clerk's Strike Actions At Fairlington Draw $50 Fine

By Donald Olesen
Post Reporter

A union clerk was fined $50 for activity in the month-old strike of Fairlington maintenance workers yesterday after he admitted having been a Communist at one time.

The clerk, Clarence Darrow Gurewitz, 33, of 1619 R st. nw., was tried in Arlington County Court. He is a clerk for Local 82, Building Service Employes (AFL).

Acting Trial Justice Harry Thomas yesterday fined Gurewitz $25 for destroying public property, placed him on a $100 peace bond, then fined him $25 more for "illegal picketing."

In an offshoot of the same case yesterday, Fairlington nonstriker, Thomas Huff of Marshall, Va., faced two charges of assault, one made by Gurewitz. Judge Thomas dismissed the charges against Huff.

All charges arose from a picket line dispute December 30 at the development.

The Communist issue entered the trial while Gurewitz served as a prosecution witness against Huff.

Homer Thomas, Huff's attorney, and the son of Judge Thomas who presided, asked the union clerk: "Are you a Communist?"

Assistant Commonwealth's Attorney Paul D. Brown promptly objected that the question had no bearing on the case.

Said Judge Thomas: "They're asking that question in all the courts and in Congress—I don't see why it shouldn't be asked here."

The answer is no," Gurewitz then answered.

Psychiatrist Testifies

Ex-GI Freed in Radio Theft; Battle Memories Are Blamed

Baltimore, Jan. 9 (AP).—An unnerved veteran of bitter fighting in the South Pacific was freed of a burglary charge today when a court psychiatrist reported he broke into a shop and stole a radio under the delusion he was getting ammunition for his buddies.

Dr. Jacob H. Conn testified Wilbur Shattuck's "anxiety hysteria" was established through hypnosis and a "truth serum."

The 32-year-old veteran of the Bougainville campaign is under treatment at a veterans' hospital here.

Dr. Conn reported that under hypnosis he writhed around, slapping at flies and mosquitoes, muttered "Vines . . . Vines," and talked about comrades blown to pieces in the next foxhole.

One of the examining psychiatrists mentioned a truck.

"They needed ammo. I took a truck . . . got ammo," Dr. Conn quoted Shattuck.

Further questions indicated he believed he had broken into an ammunition depot to get the size of shells. Dr. Conn pointed out the stolen radio was about the size of 105 MM. ammunition case.

"He attacked his wife and crawled under the bed, thinking the Japs had him," Dr. Conn reported.

"Everything indicates it was a valid, authentic hypnotic experience which is not being imitated. It is a very complex psychological problem of an emotionally unstable veteran who has not been able to digest his war experiences."

Judge Joseph Sherbow and assistant State's Attorney William J. O'Donnell agreed that continued treatment at a veterans' facility be made a condition of dismissing the charges.

10 Film Figures Face Trial for Contempt

Writers and Directors Plead Not Guilty In Refusal to Affirm or Deny They're Reds

Post Reporter

Ten Hollywood writers and directors who refused to tell a House committee whether or not they were Communists were ordered to face trial yesterday after they pleaded innocent to charges of contempt of Congress.

Federal Judge Richmond B. Keech released the 10 on $1000 bond each after they were fingerprinted and photographed.

First to enter the "not guilty" plea was writer John Howard Lawson, whom one witness at November hearings before the House Committee on Un-American Activities termed "the red commissar of Hollywood." Lawson, first to refuse to answer the committee's "$64 question," will be the first to go to trial. Judge Keech set the date for February 9.

Other Trials Scheduled

The others are scheduled for trial in this order: Dalton Trumbo, February 16; Albert Maltz, February 23; Alvah Bessie, February 25; Samuel Ornitz, March 8; Herbert Biberman, March 10; Edward Dmytryk, March 15; Robert Adrian Scott, March 17; Ring Lardner, jr., March 22, and Lester Cole, March 24.

Lawson and Dmytryk were indicted by a grand jury here on one count of contempt. The other eight drew two-count indictments because they refused to answer questions as to whether or not they were members of the Screen Writers Guild.

Judge Keech gave defense attorneys Robert W. Kenny and Martin Popper 15 days to file legal motions in the case. Assistant District Attorney William Hitz said the Government would need only five days to return an answer to defense motions.

Conviction of contempt of Congress can bring a maximum penalty of one year in jail and $1000 fine on each count.

In trying to schedule the cases, Keech asked Kenny how long he thought it would take to try his clients.

Two Weeks Probably

Kenny said he thought the first case would take the longest and probably the trial would have to last two weeks.

"I'm far from sure it will take two weeks," Keech responded, with a smile.

Kenny balked at having his clients fingerprinted.

"They all went through this fingerprinting ordeal in Los Angeles about a week ago," Kenny said.

"We'll follow the regular procedure," Keech ruled.

Kenny obtained permission from the court for Scot and Dmytryk to take a "business trip" to England between now and the trial date. There have been reports that both have been offered British contracts.

Kenny asked for an additional 10 days to present a request to see the secret minutes of the grand jury here which indicted the 10 last month. Keech ruled he could present the request within the allotted 15 days for defense motions.

1948 Outlook For Wheat Improves

Prospects for the 1948 wheat crop, which last month was officially forecast at more than a billion bushels, have improved in recent weeks, the Agriculture Department reported yesterday.

Winter wheat seeding, which got off to a very poor start in the southern Great Plains, has continued unusually late in that area but with good germination and growth.

The department said wet fields continued to hamper harvesting of crop remnants and seeding in the Southwest. Soil moisture was said to be adequate in most areas, excessive in the Southeast.

The department said stocks of wheat on farms January 1 from the record 197 crop were the second largest of record for the date, despite heavy exports and use in this country.

The January 1 wheat stocks were reported at 27,620,000 bushels, or 17 per cent above stocks of a year ago.

Farmers reserves of 191 million bushels in Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas and Colorado were much larger than the 131 million a year ago.

Farm stocks of feed grains, on the other hand, were the smallest since the drought years of the 30's chiefly because corn stocks of 1,518,000,000 bushels were a sixth below average.

The department said continued heavy feeding of dairy cows during December wa sreflected in near record production of milk per cow. Total production for 1947 was estimated at 120 billion pounds, exceeded only in 1945 and then by 1 per cent.

Egg production in December also was at a high level, about the same as last year. Production for the full year of 1947 was estimated at 55,500,000,000 eggs, about the same as in 1946 and nearly one-fourth above average.

The department said that at this stage, most factors point toward the probability that a relatively large proportion of the country's available crop land will be kept in cultivation this year. It said the continued increase in mechanization of farms and improvement in the farm-labor situation will help get spring planting done at the proper times even if spring weather is "uncooperative."

11 'Insiders' Made 4 Million, Stassen Charges

also there when Pauley sold them at a profit of $4700 on August 19.

In his prompt reply, Anderson declared that he had never discussed any Government buying program with Pauley, and that Pauley's market operations were never discussed. He said the three families—the Pauley, Hannegan and Anderson families—were longtime friends. He said his visit at Hawaii was simply a vacation and nothing more.

Stassen urged that all accounts of big traders be studied and charted by the committee, to see if their pattern was the same as Pauley's.

He urged that bank accounts of such traders be investigated, to trace the disposition of their profits. He said "the names of the traders may not mean much. There are instances where fronts were used; when trading was done in the names of lawyers and relatives."

"You will find Pauley moving in and out of the market with approximately a million-dollar profit and with never a loss," Stassen declared.

No Such Crystal Ball

"No one," he said, "has such a good crystal ball."

Particularly, he urged, that a study be made of the accounts of large traders in St. Louis (Hannegan's home) and Chicago, to see if they showed a "similarly ultra-successful profit."

He referred to several of Pauley's successful excursions into the market, emphasizing his purchase of December hides in October. They cost, he said, $89,000, and were sold a week later, on October 7, for $119,000—"a profit," he pointed out, "of $30,000 on a small transaction in a few days."

Anderson also answered Stassen's reference to "fronts." "If he has any information which shows that fronts have been used," the Agriculture Secretary said, "he owes it to the public to name those fronts."

In declining to reveal any additional names, Stassen said he had made it a policy throughout his public life not to name names until he had "judicial proof" of what he was saying. He said that when he named Pauley on December 10, he knew he could prove Pauley's market operations through subpena of Pauley's records from the brokers.

From Loyal Employes

He said he had got his information from Government employes—"loyal to their Government, who were disgusted with the action of some officials."

He declined to give their names, saying he feared they would be punished, and that to reveal them would "dry them up" as sources for further information. Anderson's reply was assurance that if he was referring to any Agriculture Department employes, he could be assured they would not be harmed if their names were disclosed.

Anderson sneered at Stassen's charge that Government personnel had profited by inside information.

"There are hundreds of employes in the executive department who knew about the Government's grain program," Anderson said—"and Stassen picked out a doctor who knew nothing about it."

Stassen replied to a question from Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.) that none of the 11 "insiders" were members of Congress. He added that a study of Graham's account would show he made a profit instead of "losing his socks" as Graham had told reporters.

While Stassen was on the stand Graham was waiting in an anteroom to testify, accompanied by an attorney.

Severely Cross-Examined

Stassen was subjected to a severe cross-examination by two Democratic members, Senators Theodore F. Green (R. I.) and O'Mahoney.

O'Mahoney forced Stassen to back down on a statement that Anderson was in Hawaii when Pauley bought wheat. He admitted that Anderson was "on the high seas" when the purchase was made.

Green went over Stassen's speech of December 10 at Doylestown, Pa., when the name of Pauley was first revealed, step by step.

He pointed out that Stassen had charged Pauley with large speculations in wheat, although the records showed he was in corn and oats, lard, cottonseed and hides, but not in wheat.

Stassen repeatedly asserted his "statements had been borne out 100 per cent." He said that Pauley had profited by the rise in wheat, because the bull market in wheat had influenced other markets.

In reply to Green, Stassen said he thought all food prices should be brought down 10 per cent. He then interjected comment that operations by Pauley, Graham, Davies and other "insiders" would have a bad effect just as "we are trying to prove to the world the superior nature of our form of Government."

Plain Hoarding, He Says

He charged that Pauley had testified that he was holding his grain purchases in order to take advantage of the capital gains tax—or six months. He said that was "plain hoarding" of grain when it was in short supply.

Stassen and Green engaged in several heated exchanges. Green demanded to know the names of all persons Stassen suspected of using inside information for their personal profit.

When Stassen replied he wouldn't until he had "judicial proof" and that the committee had the power of subpena to learn them, Green shouted:

"Give us the names. You promised to aid the committee in every way possible. Don't deal in generalities."

Green later charged Stassen with asking the committee to go "on a fishing expedition."

Traffic in Suffering

The market activities of Pauley, Davies and others who profited in the market, Stassen at one time termed: "trafficking in the suffering of the people compounded by excessively high prices."

He urged that Pauley's market activities in 1945 and 1946, when he was a member of the Reparations Commission studying conditions abroad, be studied. "He had considerable dealings during those periods," he said.

He declared that President Truman had "indicated he does not intend to enforce" a ruling by President Roosevelt in 1937, barring Government employes from speculating in stocks, bonds and commodities.

"I agree with President Roosevelt's order," he said. "I don't agree with President Truman when he said that he did not think employes specifically shown to be speculating in the markets had done wrong."

While the Senators listened to Stassen, the House Ways and Means Committee postponed action on a resolution which would open income tax records to committees investigating grain speculation. Chairman Knutson (R., Minn.) declared the resolution, offered by Representative Clare Hoffman (R., Mich.), was "too broad."

Both Pauley's and Davies' names appeared on a new list of commodity traders released during the day. They were shown to have been large traders in oats during 1946 and 1947.

Pauley's name also appeared on a list of 340 big traders in cotton, wool tops and cottonseed oil during the same two years.

Axman Challenges Date

Kuala Lumpur, Malaya, Jan. 8 (AP).—Japanese Capt. Seichiro Ito denied before a war crimes court today that he beheaded a Chinese named Koon Choon. "It simply is not true," he told the judge. "I never beheaded a Chinese until three months after they say this happened."

Only Libel Laws Should Curb Union Press, Stassen Says

St. Joseph, Mo., Jan. 9 (AP).—Harold E. Stassen, Republican presidential aspirant, said tonight that union publications should have the right to print whatever they please, except for matter prohibited by libel laws.

He also said the Taft-Hartley Law provision "prohibiting direct or indirect political contributions by unions" was "a serious invasion of freedom," and as applied to union journals was contrary to American principles.

In Text of Address

Stassen, in the text of an address prepared for the annual banquet of the Northwest Missouri Press Association, said:

"Newspapers published by unions should have inviolate the complete right of freedom of press to print anything they wish on any subject, including politics, limited only by the regular law of libel."

He said many of the Nation's newspapers are owned by individuals having special business or government interests, and that to permit "a classification of newspapers and restrictions on the rights of a free press" is to "fundamentally violate one of the most important liberties of the American people."

Good Law, Taken as Whole

As to the Taft-Hartley law, Stassen said he supported final passage of the bill and that:

"Taken as a whole it is a good law. It will improve labor relations in the Nation. It will not injure the workers, but in fact will benefit them through fewer strikes, less loss of wages, more democracy in unions and no weakening of the fundamental rights of labor.

"But in one important respect a serious invasion of freedom has occurred. I refer to the clause prohibiting direct or indirect political contributions by unions."

Clay Doesn't Wish To Fill Civil Post In Ruling Germany

Berlin, Jan. 9 (AP).—Gen. Lucius D. Clay, United States Military Governor of Germany, said today he does not want to serve in a civilian post as high commissioner when the State Department takes over administration of the United States occupation zone.

Secretary of State Marshall said yesterday in testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that the State Department hopes to take over administration of the zone from the Army June 30.

"I have no desire to serve here in any capacity except military," Clay told a reporter. He recalled he had asked for permission to retire from the Army in 1948. He added no date had been fixed for his retirement, and that he had no post-retirement plans except to "go fishing in Georgia." He indicated he would remain in Germany until the State Department chooses a successor.

Waitress Fined For Tossing Dish At Charm Tutor

It is a safe wager that Mrs. Ila B. Subley will never enroll in the Parker School of Personality, Development and Speech Culture.

Mrs. Agnes McCall Parker, owner of the school, charged Mrs. Subley, a waitress, had none of those attributes when she threw a coffee creamer at Mrs. Parker in Vic's Restaurant, 1142 Connecticut ave. nw., November 25.

In fact, Mrs. Parker even offered to "teach you to be a lady," Mrs. Subley told a Municipal Court jury yesterday. The waitress also testified that Mrs. Parked used "bad language."

The school owner denied this. "I love people so," she said. "I was distressed at her rudeness."

The jury, recommending leniency, found Mrs. Subley, now of Jackson, Miss., guilty of assault. She was fined $50.

Beall said yesterday that the board will have to make a detailed comparison of their new finding and facts on hand before scheduling another hearing, probably early next week.

Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald said if the probe turns up any evidence of criminal negligence his office will take action. To date, the coroner's office is "sitting tight, waiting to see what the present investigation turns up," he said.

Germans Stage Strike In Ruhr Area

Frankfurt, Jan. 9 (U.P.).—Forty-five thousand Germans staged a "hunger" strike in the Ruhr today in a move Allied authorities thought might be the opening of a Communist counterattack against the formation of a central German governmental regime in the United States and British occupation zones.

The strikes were peaceable and there was nothing on the surface to indicate a political motive. But the Russian and German leftists propaganda machines were at work opposing the central regime plan and Allied officials said that while there were legitimate food grievances the Ruhr strikes may be political.

Thirty-five thousand Germans walked out of factories in Solingen in the Ruhr and 10,000 walked out in Essen. There was also an unrelated wildcat streetcar strike in Munich in the American zone. Strike leaders intimated that their men in all three cities would be back at work tomorrow.

Solingen strikers demanded punishment of black marketeers and readjustment of the food ration to prevent forgery of ration cards.

The United States and British military governments announced in Berlin that $1,360,000,000 worth of goods had been imported into the Anglo-American zones from August 1945, through December, 1947, of this 77 per cent was food for which the United States and Britain paid equally.

It was made known also that a Russian - sponsored "German peoples congress" would meet in Berlin January 15. Allied officials expected the congress to work out plans to undermine the authority of new bizonal agencies.

French Protest Plan For German Regime

Paris, Jan. 9.—The French government instructed its ambassadors in Washington and London today to express dissatisfaction and uneasiness to the American and British government over the formation of a joint administration of their occupation zones in Germany.

The French object to the manner in which the "ersatz German government" was organized and are afraid its formation tends to prejudge the form of federalism that may be authorized ultimately for a central German state.

The French will point out they were not informed of the intention to organize a "cabinet" of six German agencies, with a chief executive, upper and lower houses of a parliament, and a judiciary system.

"There is supposed to be some cooperation between the occupation powers," a spokesman said.

U. N. Partition Unit Asks Aid in Setup Of Jew, Arab States

Lake Success, Jan. 9 (AP).—The United Nations Palestine Partition Commission today asked the Arabs and Jews of Palestine and the British government to help in setting up independent Arab and Jewish countries in the Holy Land by next October 1.

The Arab Higher Committee rejected the bid with the comment that it was "fantastic."

An Arab representative said the committee would boycott the five-man commission and continue opposing Palestine's partition.

The delegates generally have acknowledged that they lack thus far the military force to make their decisions effective. Thus they received with considerable interest reports from London and Washington on the possibility of posting a small force of United States Marines in the Holy Land to protect the American consulate.

The Washington and London reports overshadowed the first meeting of the commission, at which Karel Lisicky of Czechoslovakia acknowledged the lack of sufficient force to make its decisions binding.

After being unanimously elected chairman, Lisicky asked the U. N.—and the world—not to expect miracles from "five lonely pilgrims" (the commissioners, who will go into Palestine. He said the "pilgrims" now are armed only with the blue and white U. N. flag.

Informants close to the government in London said the United States had "sounded out" the British on sending Marines to guard the United States consulate in Jerusalem. A State Department spokesman said the United States never had made a request to send the Marines. He said the question arose when the consulate general in Jerusalem discussed with the Palestine government a need for measures to increase the security of the consulate.

The general comment among the delegates was that if the Americans sent Marines there for security purposes other countries with consulates in Palestine might do the same.

London sources said Britain would welcome United States forces.

Trygve Lie, U. N. secretary-general, opened the commission's first meeting with an outline of the "host of difficult tasks" facing it and with an expression of confidence in the commission's ability to surmount these obstacles.

Lie made it clear that the commission must appeal to the Security Council if it required armed forces to help in creating the two nations.

U. S. Urged to Make U. N. Foundation of Policy

New York, Jan. 9 (U.P.).—The American Association for the United Nations cautioned the Administration tonight against the selfish use of U. N. machinery. It said a basic understanding with Russia should be the principle American goal in the world organization in 1948.

On the eve of U. N.'s second anniversary, the association urged the United States to make the U. N. "the foundation of its foreign policy."

"firmly convinced" the arms cache was intended to be shipped to Palestine, said the warehouse and farm belonged to Charles Lowy, member of the Asbury Park Zionist organization.

Lowy and eight other men were arrested last night on charges of transporting and storing explosives without a permit, and the drivers of the trucks seized this afternoon in Ulster County were taken into custody for questioning.

All but Lowy were released on bail furnished by Zimel Resnick, former chairman of the local Zionists who described himself as a business associate of Lowy. Resnick returned last summer from a visit to Palestine.

Forty-two tons of the explosives were found on Lowy's farm as a result of a tip from an anonymous farmer, police said, and the remaining 17 tons were discovered in a large truck-trailer parked outside Lowy's warehouse here.

The explosives came from the Seneca Ordnance Depot at Romulus, N. Y., and New Jersey State police said they had been informed that another 140 tons had been shipped here since last Tuesday.

WAA Stops Explosives Shipments in N. Y. Area

New York, Jan. 9 (AP).—All undelivered orders of surplus explosives were ordered frozen and all shipments stopped in War Assets Administration depots and warehouses in the New York region today by John R. Campbell, regional director of the WAA.

He said this was a "precautionary measure" against "any possible illegal handling of explosives."

bitter fighting with gendarmes was still in progress late last night.

Authorities said other guerilla forces had been observed around Dois and Erateini and it was believed that they intended to gross the Gulf of Corinth and attack from the sea.

Minister of War George Stratos told military leaders in Thrace that two more guerillas regiments had shown up in Bulgaria, just across the Greek frontier. He said he believed they had come from Yugoslavia through Albania by truck.

Romania Gives King's Powers To Praesidium

Bucharest, Jan. 9 (U.P.).—The government published a decree today turning over nearly all the powers the Romanian throne used to have to a "high praesidium" of five men.

The decree also gave Romania a new coat of arms and a flag. The coat of arms is a tractor and three furnaces on a rising sun field, surrounded by a bundle of wheat spears tied with a ribbon and inscribed "Romanian Popular Republic."

The flag is of blue, yellow and red vertical stripes, with the new coat of arms in the center. The decree providing for the praesidium, the coat of arms and the flag will be presented to parliament for approval when it reconvenes January 20.

Under the decree, the oldest man on the praesidium will be its president. At present he is Prof. Constantin Parhon, a nonparty man and noted historian.

The praesidium will have the power to convene parliament at the cabinet's request.

Mihai Tinkers With Jeep As Anne Travels to Him

Lausanne, Switzerland, Jan. 9 (U.P.).—Former King Mihai of Romania tinkered with the motor of his jeep today to pass the time until arrival of his fiancee, Princess Anne of Bourbon-Parma, en route from Copenhagen for a secret rendezvous "somewhere in Switzerland."

Princess Anne, carrying a new pair of skis and wearing diamonds and a skunk coat, boarded the North Express early today. She was accompanied by her mother, Princess Margrethe of Bourbon-Parma.

The blond princess, who reportedly has the most beautiful pair of royal legs in Europe, said her plane would take her only as far as the station platform in an undisclosed place in Switzerland. What happens after that, she said, is up to the handsome Mihai.

Reticent but radiant, Anne posed for 30 photographers on the eve of her departure.

The conductor said Anne had tickets to Basle, Switzerland. If she goes straight to Basle, Mihai might meet her there and accompany her by car or train to a winter resort.

A correspondent asked Anne whether she would change her religion—she is a Roman Catholic and Mihai is an Orthodox Catholic—and she replied, "Certainly not."

Jouhaux Replaced on WFTU Board

Paris, Jan. 9.Leon Jouhaux, veteran labor leader and organizer of the non-Communist "Workers' Strength" movement, learned today that he had been "replaced" as French representative on the executive committee of the World Federation of Trade Unions by France's Communist-controlled General Federation of Labor (CGT).

Even though Jouhaux has not resigned from the international body, CGT leaders announced this morning that they had appointed Alain le Leap, the federation's new co-secretary-general, to take Jouhaux's place.

By so doing, the Communists served notice on "Workers' Strength" that they, and they alone, are qualified to represent France in the WFTU.

Robert Bothereau, former CGT secretary who helped organize "Workers' Strength" said, "we regard ourselves as the true spokesmen for French labor and as such will ask the WFTU executive committee to recognize us." Bothereau was also "replaced" today as auxiliary representative to the WFTU by Julien Forgues of the CGT.

A WFTU spokesman explained that the CGT action in replacing Jouhaux and Bothereau was technically legal, as these men belonged to the international organization by virture of their former status as officials of the CGT.

The WFTU executive committee, which is due to meet next month, is going to have to choose between two sets of French delegates.

Sanity Hearing Set for Mathis In Slaying Case

By The Associated Press

A sanity hearing has been set Tuesday in Circuit Court in Towson, Md., for Walter Ray Mathis, 40-year-old Alexandria contractor charged with the slaying of his former wife's new husband August 9.

Mathis was indicted by the Baltimore County grand jury on a murder charge in the death of Kenneth E. Colbert, 31-year-old steel worker. He has been held in the Baltimore County jail since his arrest in Alexandria a day after the shooting.

The sanity hearing will be before Judge John B. Gontrum.

couraging any attempt to seize the strategic Dardanelle Straits by making a seaborne invasion costly.

Turkey's present navy is built around this concept. Principal vessels—aside from an old battle cruiser—are eight destroyers and ten submarines.

Four of the destroyers are comparatively modern craft built in England. Several of the subs also were received from the British at the beginning of the war. None compare with the American submersibles, which will be delivered to Turkish ports by United States crews in April.

Built in 1944 at New London, Conn., the four subs now are at West Coast bases. They will be fitted out at their home yard before sailing for Turkey.

Costing from six to eight millions apiece, each submarines carries a crew of 10 officers and 65 men.

The other vessels will be delivered to Turkey at American ports. Officials said that 200 Turkish naval officers and men now are in this country under instruction in handling the craft. Another contingent is due to arrive today at Norfolk, with the total to be trained here about 350.

Italy Seeks To End 9-Day Bank Strike

Rome, Jan. 9 (AP).—Government officials tried again tonight to settle a nine-day-old bank strike afflicting the Italian economy as a new wave of labor unrest spread through the country.

The 60,000 bank employes are striking for continuation of a 1947 contract which contained temporary pay increases.

At Udine in the northeast, the Defense Ministry prepared to court-martial leaders of army conscripts of the class of 1925 who demonstrated there against an order keeping them in service past the day they expected to be out.

(In Paris the right-wing newspaper L'Intransigeant said Communist leaders had decided to stage an uprising in northern Italy April 15 to set up an "independent popular republic" with Yugoslav help. The newspaper added that according to the Communist plans the uprising would spread immediately to southern France. Florimond Bonte, a French Communist deputy, described the report as "fantasy.")

German Woman Gets 2437 Offers to Wed

Berlin, Jan. 9 (U.P.).—The newspaper Nacht-Express reported today that a 28-year-old woman received 2437 offers of marriage in reply to her advertisement in a Schleswig-Holstein paper that she occupied a two-room apartment and received two food packages monthly from the United States.

his notes asking that these letters be written.

Supreme Court briefs are filled with quotations taken from the decisions of other years. Clark and Pearlman quoted a few lines of the ruling last year on the blue ribbon juries in New York. Gilligan and Crooks told the justices, "This quotation is lifted out of context and deliberately misrepresents the meaning of the opinion." They quoted the whole passage to show what they meant.

The covenanters' counsel accused the Government, too, of trying to trump up a problem of "race hostilities" when there is nothing about hostilities in the record. Gilligan and Crooks added, "this is apparently a deliberate attempt on the part of the Government to read into these contracts motives which are not present."

Elsewhere, the covenanters' brief said the Government stand was completely discredited by ridiculous statements. Private citizens trying to win their cases might be excused for excesses, the brief commented, "but the Government must not only be criticized but condemned for such practice."

Finally, Gilligan and Crooks said their clients were asking the Supreme Court for due process of law, and for equal protection of their property rights, and no more. They were willing, they said, that Negroes and all others should have the same rights and protection, but no more.

machine guns, the British broke that Arab ring and were believed to have destroyed an Arab machine-gun nest. The firepower of the British troops was said to have boosted the morale of the Jewish residents of Kfar Szold, named in honor of the American Jewess who founded the Hadassah organization.

Communal violence took nine lives throughout Palestine in 24 hours, bringing to 646 the unofficial death count since the United Nations voted for partition November 29.

In Jerusalem, Scottish infantrymen following police armored cars took four truckloads of supplies into the old walled city where 1500 Jews have been besieged by Arabs since New Year's Day.

An informant said he was convinced there were plenty of supplies already in the old city but that Jewish leaders were "making political capital of the situation by demanding that the British take food through the Arab blockade in the name of humanity."

The Stern Gang, Jewish extremist group, issued a statement telling foreign correspondents they "forfeited their privileges of immunity" by carrying identification cards from the Arab Higher Executive.

Hatch Urges Political Truce On Inflation, Aid to Europe

also meet with the Banking and Currency Committee, considering inflation control.

"If . . . agreement could be reached, those powerful committees could come to the floor and throw the strength of their united decision and action behind the plan agreed upon," Hatch said.

Fears Verdict of Historians

Hatch told the Senate that if quibbling and delay develops in clearing European aid and meeting the inflation danger he feared "historians of the future may write that such discord, disunity, indecision and inaction by us marked the beginning of the downfall of the Republic."

Praising Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, he said the Michigan Republican "has given as fine an example of nonpolitical and nonpartisan approach to world-wide issues as has ever been given by any . . . statesman anywhere."

Wherry told Hatch that "when it comes to a decision on a nonpartisan basis affecting our foreign policy . . . the cooperation of the Republican Party can be assured."

Barkley Starts Political Play

"Naturally, however, there are those who believe that the issues involved should be settled in certain ways."

The 1948 by-play started when Senate Democratic Leader Alben Barkley (Ky.) asked Wherry if Taft's speech was nonpartisan."

"It was just as nonpartisan as the speech delivered by the President . . . before the joint session," said Wherry.

"Far be it from me to throw a straw in his (Taft's) way as a candidate," said Barkley.

Wonders Why Only Taft Replies

Senate Democratic Whip Scott W. Lucas (Ill.) said that with so many Republicans in the field he wondered why Taft was the only one who ever answered the President.

Senator Irving M. Ives (R., N. Y.), a Dewey man, was presiding. Said Ives: "The chair regrets that the chair cannot enter the debate."

Lucas: "The chair can call some other Senator to take his place."

Ives: "The Senator from Illinois is doing very nicely."

Lucas: "I do not think it is fair to Governor Dewey. I do not think it is fair to Governor Stassen and other distinguished individuals . . . to have our distinguished friend from Ohio consume all the time that is being taken to answer the President."

Wherry needled back. He asked Lucas if he spoke as a Democratic vice-presidential aspirant. Lucas dodged the question, but Senator Dennis Chavez (D., N. Mex.) spoke up. He said Lucas could speak for himself but he (Chavez) is "for Secretary Marshall and no one else."

Wherry's comment: "As the debate proceeds we receive a number of ideas and we are all glad to have them. I think thy are most constructive."

following driving tips:

1. There is no place in Washington where the law permits you to exceed 30 miles an hour.

2. Under certain weather and traffic conditions, you can be charged with "unreasonable speed" if you're traveling much more than 25 miles an hour.

3. You must signal intention of turning 100 feet ahead of the turn. (At this point, a feminine student inquired: "How far is 100 feet?" Sergeant Ostrom replied it was "two streetcar lengths and a little more.")

4. Seven miles an hour is as fast as you can go in an alley.

Classes, each two hours long, will terminate at the end of six hours of study. They are held on Friday from 8 to 10 p. m. and Saturday from 10 a. m. to noon.

On completion of the course, the student may be given acertificate and his record—he is expected to make a grade of 70—will be sent to the agency which referred him to the school.

Other instructors last night included Chairman Mary Silver of the Board of Revocation and Restoration of Operators' Permits, and Lieut. Marshall Gore, of the Traffic Division . Interested spectators including Judges Aubrey Fennell and George D. Neilson and their wives.

use of American money by a foreign country to pay interest on its foreign debt. "We've got a little debt of our own over here," Connally remarked.

Storm Signals Appear

Many more changes, of course, will be proposed by the committee; it remains to be seen whether they retain the outlines of the Administration's bill or alter them beyond recognition. The fact that friendly Senators suggested several changes, on only the second day of the hearing, and before real cross-examination had begun, was one of many signs that the bill would have a stormy time in Congress.

Ambassador Douglas did not have a happy day as a witness yesterday. He tried every technique to convince the committee: Warm emotion, dry statistics, patient exposition, and even the advertising man's device of wall charts intended to make the story clear and vivid.

But the committee did not seem to respond, although Douglas is a former Congressman from Arizona, with troops of admirers on Capitol Hill. On this particular day the committee members, Democrats and Republicans alike, seemed to have come straight from Missouri.

Perhaps because Douglas has been mentioned as future Administrator of the recovery program, he let himself be tongue-tied and disconcerted by this question, quietly asked by Senator Henry Cabot Lodge (R., Mass.):

"Suppose you or some other very able person were administrator, would you be able to move in on this with competent men, without red tape, without having your messages delayed by the State Department? Would you be able to make it work under this scheme?"

Taken as Personal Question

Douglas hesitated, standing with his back to one of his wall charts, while other committee members argued whether it was a fair question. Finally, after a long silence, he explained that it was always hard to get the best possible staff because of salary restrictions and other limitations on Government officials.

"Well, do you think it will work?" asked Lodge.

"Yes, I think it will," Douglas answered in the end. Lodge explained later that he had not meant anything personal in asking his original question, and thought Douglas had misunderstood him.

George Disputese "All or None"

Toward the end of his five hours of testimony, Douglas drew a sharp rebuke from Senator Walter F. George (D., Ga.) for saying that endless relief expenditures would result from cutting the proposed program.

"I do not think the State Department is justified in presenting these absolute alternatives," said George. "That is the technique of propaganda, which I do not myself appreciate. We are not faced by absolute alternatives, and that, in my judgment, is the basic error of this whole presentation.

"I don't believe, for example, that if we reduce this slightly we will wreck the program. We are told flatly that $6,800,000,000 is necessary and that we must do the whole thing or none. That is not wholly a proper statement to make to the legislative branch.

Headline Writers Blamed

"Suppose we make it six billion; are we to be told, then, that you must have the $6,800,000,000 or nothing? I don't think it is a teachnique you should resort to, and I don't think Secretary Marshall meant it that way."

Douglas replied that Marshall had simply stated his best judgment of the needs of the situation when he said on Thursday "either undertake to meet the requirements of the problem or don't undertake it at all." The "all or nome" wording was contributed by headline writers rather than by Marshall, he explained.

He added that the $6,800,000,000 figure represented a scaling down of the original requests of the 16 countries, and also a reduction of the estimates of the Harriman committee of distinguished private citizens.

Douglas Fears Mere "Relief"

Earlier he had argued that cutting the program would mean reducing Europe's self-imposed export targets, would retard European production and in the end would cost the United States "incalculably more" in relief payments than it was now proposing to spend on recovery.

"One of the most extravagant and wasteful things this country can do—and I do not have a reputation as an advocate of Government spending—is so to reduce the amount available as to convert this program into a relief program," the Ambassador ssaid.

He estimated that from one-sixth to one-seventh of the proposed $6,800,000,000 in the first 15 months would be spent for capital equipment, and the remainder for food, fuel and essential raw materials for industry.

Marshall Won't Resign If Aid Plan Falls Through

Secretary Marshall isn't ready to retire to his farm at Leesburg.

He told his press conference yesterday that he was not threatening to resign if Congress failed to approve his European Recovery Program. Any such act, he said, would be contrary to everything he had learned in Government service.

Of course, he added with a grin, he might be asked to retire to Leesburg at any time.

His remark to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that "there cannot be two Secretaries of State" had been interpreted in some newspaper comment as a concealed threat to resign.

New Orleans Bank Robbed Of $130,000; Part Recovered

New Orleans, Jan. 9 (AP).—Police arrested three suspects and recovered bagsful of money today a few hours after five bandits pulled the biggest bank robbery in years by taking about 130,000 from the Mid-City Branch of the Hibernia National Bank.

The holdup was an expert job—but Police Superintendent A. A. Watters said the robbers made the mistake of talking too loudly when they made their plans in a New Orleans bar.

"If we had known last night what we knew this morning," Watters commented, "we could have greeted the men at the bank."

Watters estimated that a suitcase seized by police when two men were arrested contained $35,000. Detective Chief Joseph Scheuring said that $30,000 was found in a paper bag in the room of another suspect.

Scheuring identified the men in custody as George W. Ricketts, 23, of Chalmette, La., and his 21-year-old nephew, Tommie Ricketts of New Orleans, and John Hassenbach, 23, of New Orleans.

The three men were charged with armed robbery, punishable by death in Louisiana. A woman was taken to headquarters, but was not held.

Scheuring declared that Hassenbach was the driver of the getaway automobile.

Watters said that an informant heard the holdup being planned at a New Orleans bar. He added that the man telephoned police headquarters last night, but did not tell his story at that time because the officer to whom he wanted to talk to was off duty.

Watters commented that "we have a pretty good idea who the others are."

The robbery went off with clockwise precision.

A porter, Joseph L. Thomas, was knocked unconscious with a pistol barrel when he protested the rough handling of one of the women employes.

Two of the bandits stood guard over the 22 to 25 employes in the locker rooms, and while their confederates were looting the vault they rifled purses and pocketbooks of their prisoners.

Four of the five men forced their way into the bank at 7:55 a. m., as employes were arriving for work. The fifth remained in the automobile.

After the bandits had gathered all the money in sight, they locked Amuedo in a locker room with other employes who had arrived early for work.

Smoke-Bomb Bandits Rob Harvard Store of $50,000

Cambridge, Mass., Jan. 9 (U.P.)—Hurling three smoke bombs to blind and panic 200 customers and employes, three fast-working bandits held up the famous Harvard Co-Op in traffic-jammed Harvard Square today and escaped with $50,000 in cash.

Two gunmen struck minutes after an armored car had delivered the cash to the store to be used for cashing checks for wealthy Harvard students.

Seizing the money bag, the bandits fled through smoke and escaped in a stolen car driven by a confederate.

Entering through a back door, the bandits tossed one smoke bomb into the book department at the rear of the store, another in the shoe department in the middle and a third in the stationery department at the front—thereby throwing a smoke screen before all exits.

Taking advantage of the resulting confusion, the bandits worked quickly and efficiently.

As the bandits fled, co-op manager Andrew Dupre sought to halt them and was slugged. James Harper, a Harvard student, chased them but was discouraged when one menaced him with a pistol.

Martin Calls Truman Tax Plan Inflationary in Jersey Talk

Newark, N. J., Jan. 9 (AP). —Speaker Joseph W. Martin, jr., (R., Mass.) tonight described President Truman's proposal to cut low-bracket income taxes and increase the levies on business as "plain buncombe" and "inflationary."

His prepared speech was to be read by Senator Albert W. Hawkes (R., N. J.) before the New Jersey Taxpayers Association after Martin had been confined to his bed in Washington by grippe.

"It will be a bitter disappointment," Martin said, "that not a single hope was held out in the President's message for any reduction in the gigantic costs of Government."

President Truman, in his State of the Nation address before Congress, recommended income tax reductions and increased business levies.

"To transfer the load of excessive taxation to business," Martin said, would compel "business to pass these excessive taxes on in higher prices to all the people."

Martin predicted "the Administration will seek to blame business for the high prices. "This latest maneuver of the Administration is plain buncombe."

At the same time, Martin asserted that the Administration had resisted Congress' efforts to reduce the national budget and that was far as the present Administration is concerned, the American people are doomed to pay wartime taxes indefinitely.

Excessive Demands Cited

Martin reported that bureau spokesmen came before the committees of the Congress and tried to conceal assets, built up exorbitant demands and "began to cry we were wrecking the Government."

He said border guards were laid off, inviting "the smuggling of Communist fifth columnists" to scare the people into demanding that Congress grant their budget requests. He said similar threats of impaired mail service were made.

Martin said the cure for inflation in America is production, which must be fostered by greater incentive for the risk of new capital.

Inflation has been aggravated by the demand for "vast amounts of post-lend lease aid to Europe" with the "goods going abroad; wages staying home." This, he said, sent prices soaring as more money competed to buy less goods.

Truman Asked To Intervene In Oil Strike

Galveston, Tex., Jan. 9 (AP).—The possibility of a decision on the nine-day strike at the Pan American refinery in Texas City, Tex., loomed today while an oil-hungry East Coast clamored to President Truman for intervention.

Representatives of the striking CIO oil workers and the company met here last night, and a spokesman indicated some announcement might be made today.

The Governor of North Carolina and the mayor of Baltimore appealed to the President and other Government leaders yesterday for the release of fuel oil, fronzen by the walkout.

A Pan-American Refining Corp. spokesman in New York City last night said "enough fuel to heat 750,000 homes for a week" had been tied up by the nine-day old strike of workers at the company's plant in Texas City.

The session here last night took place in the Federal Courthouse. Tuesday, a similar meeting lasted until 2 a. m. Wednesday with no agreement.

Workers at the Texas City plant, and from the company's pipeline plant at Houston, struck in support of a demand for a 50-cent hourly wage hike. The company offered a boost of 31½ cents per hour.

Mayor D'Alesandro of Baltimore asserted Baltimore would receive approximately 2,500,000 barrels of fuel oil if stocks now tied up were released.

Gov. R. Gregg Cherry of North Carolina, along with members of that State's congressional group, sent a resolution to President Truman asking him to use "every power at his command" to obtain settlement of the dispute.

He added the shortage of fuel oil for domestic consumption in Baltimore "is becoming increasingly desperate" for home owners, hospitals and other institutions.

nomination for President is best qualified to lead this Nation in this tme of great crises in national and international affairs.

"I have come to the conclusion that Dwight D. Eisenhower is that man.

I am under the conviction that if my party will nominate him at the convention in June he will defeat any opposition in November by a great popular vote . . .

"I take this position with only the kindest regards for all other potential or announced candidates.

". . . It is my considered judgment that if Mr. Eisenhower will permit his name to be used, his election will be assured and that in naming him as its candidate the Republican Party will honor itself and make available for the people's support in November a man peculiarly qualified to lead the Nation through one of the most serious epochs in its history."

Not Sounded Out on "Draft"

General Eisenhower, who soon will retire as Army chief of staff t obecome president of Columbia University, has been in bed at Fort Myer, Va., with a "light touch of bronchitis," according to an announcement at the Pentagon yesterday.

In New Hampshire it is not necessary for delegates to a national political convention to obtain the permission of a candidate before pledging their support to him.

The seven prominent Republicans who filed in Concord yesterday, stating that they were committed to Eisenhower, said they had not sounded out the general about a "draft."

Besides Charles W. Tobey, jr., the Eisenhower slate was made up of State Senator R. H. Chandler, Ralph E. Langdell, former State Justice H. Thornton Lorimer, Stanley M. Burns, John Jacobson, jr., Executive Councilor Franklin Flanders and State Senator Paul B. Gay.

Leader of the draft-Eisenhower drive in New Hampshire was Joseph H. Geisel, 76-year-old Manchester banker and veteran Republican State legislator.

Newspaper's Indorsement

The Manchester Evening Leader, largest afternoon paper in New Hampshire, indorsed Eisenhower yesterday as "the best candidate for the Republicans to nominate."

Only partial slates of delegates filed in Concord for Dewey and Stassen, but the deadline for filing is a month away.

Pledged to Dewey were Prof. Emeritus Charles B. Holden of Hanover and former State Senator John B. Perley. For Stassen were State Senator Earl S. Hewitt and Executive Councilor Donald G. Matson.

Prof. Herbert W. Hill of Hanover, Democratic State chairman, and another delegate pledged themselves to President Truman.

The eldest son of the late President and chairman of the California Democratic State Central Committee also said he thought the subject was premature and even "presumptuous," but in any event he is not a candidate for the Democratic vice presidential nomination.

Philadelphia, Jan. 9 (U.P.).—The international executive board of the Food, Tobacco and Agricultural Workers Union (CIO), last night indorsed the presidential candidacy of Henry A. as chairman at a meeting of the Northwest section of the Communist Party of the District at Georgia ave. and Otis place nw.?" Attorney Thomas asked Gurewitz.

Gurewitz said he had.

Attorney Thomas then cited three other Communist Party meetings which he said Gurewitz had either attended or presided over. The information, he told reporters, came to him from the Washington Police Department.

The recital was spotted with objections from Assistant Commonwealth's Attorney Brown. Judge Thomas, however, said "any episodes in his life prejudicial to his testimony should be shown," and overruled the objections.

Asked point-blank by Attorney Thomas whether he had been a Communist in June of 1946, Gurewitz replied "Yes." He denied being a Communist in June, 1947.

Guerewitz's attorney, E. W. Reisinger, told the court he "hoped we could have relegated the topic of communism to the House Committee on Un-American Activities," and said it had no bearing on the case.

Judge Thomas said the court would "take no sides in this strike," but added that "if necessary to keep the peace, we'll send riot squads down to Fairlington, arrest everybody making a disturbance, and fill the jails with them."

Strikers had claimed Huff nearly ran down their picket line with a truck, then threatened Gurewitz with a club on December 30. Huff claimed Gurewitz smashed the window of his truck.

J. B. Howell, Fairlington rental manager, swore out the warrant against Gurewitz, charging illegal picketing. The charge was based on the 1946 Acts of Assembly, which specify fines and jail sentence of up to a year for persons who participate in picketing and were not "bona fide" employes of the struck plant before the walkout.

Ala. Governor Omits Radio In News Ban

Montgomery, Ala., Jan. 9 (U.P.).—Newsmen from Alabama radio stations were back on the approved list for Gov. James E. Folsom's press conferences today, but reporters from the State's daily newspapers still were barred.

Folsom said the inclusion of radio reporters in the ban had been "inadvertent."

The Governor's ban does not extend to reporters for the major wire services nor for the State's weekly newspapers.

Folsom said he had set up the bar simply to exclude "political agents" from receiving privileges of working newsmen. He offered to accept the decision of the correspondents' association on which individuals are "political agents" and which are newspaper reporters. That offer was met by the immediate resignations from the association of Vice President Burns Bennett, of the United Press, and President Rex Thomas of the Associated Press.

They said they did not want the responsibility of deciding who could attend the Governor's press conference.

The Governor said his ban was brought about by the action of a reporter who, he charged, delivered an advance copy of one of the Governor's speeches to members of a group opposing his stand against a so-called "self-starter amendment" that would allow the Legislature to call itself into session.

The amendment was defeated by popular vote earlier this week.

Boy, 17, Spared Just 1½ Hours Before Execution

Walla Walla, Wash., Jan. 9 (AP).—An hour and a half before Joseph Maish, 17-year-old youth, was to die on the gallows of the Washington State Prison early today, Gov. Mon C. Wallgren commuted his sentence to 99 years imprisonment.

Maish stabbed a high school girl to death at Vancouver, Wash., a year ago.

The Governor had received many requests for executive clemency for the former Vancouver high school athlete. The State has never executed so young a person.

Maish had already eaten his "last meal" at the prison before the sentence was commuted. He wept when he heard of the Governor's action.

Maish was convicted of stabbing LaDonna Toscas to death in the kitchen of a Vancouver home the night of December 21, 1946. She had resisted his advances. He pleaded insanity and an "irresistible impulse" at his trial but the jury convicted him of first degree murder.

Line Made Fast To Listing Ship With 780 Aboard

Tokyo, Jan. 9 (AP).—A Russian patrol craft was reported tonight to have made a line fast to the floundering Russian ship Dvina, in distress in heavy seas some 100 miles off the east coast of Hokkaido.

The Dvina, whose master reported he had 780 passengers aboard, was still listing at a 30-degree angle, and was so low in the water that the seas crashed over her port rail, but United States air observers said she appeared in no immediate danger of foundering.

Seven other Russian and Japanese aid vessels were standing by, and United States naval authorities in Tokyo said that as soon as the sea subsided further, an attempt doubtless would be made to tow the Dvina to a Hokkaido harbor.

ITU Letter Read at NLRB Hearing to Show Union's Contract Strategy

Chicago, Jan. 9 (AP).—A document identified as a highly confidential letter from Woodruff Randolph, president of the International Typographical Union, directing that undesirable contracts be offered to employers insisting on contracts was introduced at a National Labor Relations Board hearing today.

The hearing is on an NLRB charge of unfair labor practices against the AFL union, based on a complaint of the American Newspaper Publishers Association. The ITU is accused of attempting to impose a closed shop in newspaper composing rooms contrary to the Taft-Hartley law and of failing to bargain in good faith on new contracts.

The letter was introduced by Allan Sinsheimer, jr., NLRB counsel, who said it was addressed to "officers and scale committees of all subordinate unions" and signed by Randolph. It was written on ITU stationery and marked "confidential, not to be printed or posted."

Contents of Letter

It said:

"The contract form P6 (A) prepared for submission when employers insist on a contract contains ample reason for rejection by employers in the first paragraph which provides for 60 days termination period. DO NOT CHANGE THE LIMIT.

"The other sections on the first page A to I, inclusive, are absolutely necessary. DO NOT CHANGE THEM IN ANY WAY.

"This contract makes our 'conditions of Employment form much more desirable by employers."

The letter, dated October 6, 1947, was signed, "Fraternally, Woodruff Randolph."

In response to a subpena, Reece J. Highfield, 52, of Akron, Ohio, produced various ITU records at the hearing after the union refused to produce them. Highfield, secretary and business agent of Local 182, ITU, is a member of an independent faction opposed to some of Randolph's policies.

Witness Given Guard

Highfield, who was booed by striking printers attending the hearing yesterday, was given a police guard, which escorted him to the hearing and sat in the room during his testimony today.

An ITU publication advising members that "we can collectively refuse to work for any employer refusing to meet union-promulgated conditions of employment" also was introduced.

The publication, identified as Postcard Bulletin 85, THL (Taft-Hartley Law), Point No. 5, carried this heading:

"A rock-bottom foundation must be built upon which our relations with employers must rest. In order to do so, we must have a clear understanding of our fundamental rights which remain inviolate under the Taft-Hartley law or any State law."

Under the subheading: "This is it, memorize it," the card stated:

"We cannot be compelled to make contracts with employers. We cannot be compelled to work against our will or under conditions unsatisfactory to us. We can collectively promulgate the specific conditions under which our members will work after expiration of existing agreements. We can collectively refuse to work for any employer refusing to meet union-promulgated conditions of employment. We can issue 'we do not patronize lists.' If you read it in these bulletins it is so, but only exactly what you read. There are a lot of restraints on what a union may do as to strikes and picketing."

Strategy Directed

Another bulletin introduced said that union refusal during bargaining might be construed as refusal to bargain within the meaning of the (Taft-Hartley) law. It added:

"Therefore agree to no proposal offered but lay each aside as a possibility if and provided we can agree on a complete document meeting the test of whether it is in compliance with ITU law and okayed as such by the president of the ITU."

In other bulletins introduced appeared the statements, "A so-called union shop under the Taft-Hartley law is simply a Government-sponsored open shop" and:

"With agent provocateurs, union disrupters and stool pigeons out to destroy unions you can well imagine the difficulties a union will encounter trying to maintain only union men on the job in a so-called union shop . . . The risk is too great. Don't let your union be involved in LMRA (Labor Management Act) chaos."

Forgotten District

It is said that President Truman threw everything into his State of the Union message except the kitchen sink. The kitchen sink in this case happens to be the District of Columbia. For example, the President took pains to urge Statehood for Hawaii and Alaska and extension of "the fullest possible measure of civil rights to the peoples of our Territories and possessions," yet there was no word in his speech about the City of Washington, which has been a voiceless ward of Congress for a longer period than any possession. Is Congress to conclude, therefore, that the President is deliberately ignoring the people in his own back yard, and the most promising proposal that has yet been advanced for home rule, namely, the Auchincloss Plan?

We prefer to believe that the President's omission was not intentional and that he will deal with Washington's status in a subsequent presidential message. Certainly the anomaly of a metropolitan city and World Capital run in effect by absentee overlords is too ridiculous to be continued at a time when the full attention of every member of Congress is needed on momentous national and international issues. Indeed, this is an anomaly not envisioned by the Founding Fathers. James Madison, in The Federalist, said of the future Federal District: ". . . the State will no doubt provide in the compact for the rights and consent of the citizens inhabiting it; . . . the inhabitants . . . will have had their voice in the election of the government which is to exercise authority over them; . . . a municipal legislature for local purposes, derived from their own suffrages, will of course be allowed them."

President Truman himself on several occasions has expressed sympathy with self-government for the District. The Auchincloss Plan is the result of a great deal of conscientious study by the House District Committee. Its approach is inherently practical, and it commands the enthusiasm of many District leaders. But the Auchincloss Plan will have to compete with other important legislation in Congress, and if home rule for the District is not to be shelved again, the bill will need every bit of support that can be mustered. In this respect a strong indorsement direct to Congress would be helpful.

Forbidding Criticism

In a personal letter to a member of the White House staff, Assistant Secretary of the Interior C. Girard Davidson recently expressed some reasoned objections to the Federal employe loyalty program. One would think, judging from the indignation his letter has evoked, that criticism of an executive order was tantamount to treason and that a Government official had no right to seek the improvement of a program in the administration of which he shares responsibility. This is a very dangerous idea—the idea that dissent is equivalent to disloyalty, that no subordinate may question what has been ordained by someone above him in the hierarchy of command. This kind of blind obedience is the hallmark—and, indeed, the fundamental weakness—of the totalitarian state.

It happens that Mr. Davidson's criticism of the loyalty program was very like the criticism set forth on a number of occasions by this newspaper. He believes that "we should afford an individual who is accused of the most serious offense of disloyalty to the Government at least the same protection that we provide individuals who are accused of minor infractions of the criminal statutes." And he is convinced, as we are, that "such due process, including the right of the accused to confront witnesses and to sift the evidence against him, will not prevent the orderly elimination from Government of dangerous persons."

Mr. Davidson has been charged with seeking "a wholly new and revised loyalty program" and with attempting to disclose the identity of witnesses whom the FBI wants to protect. He has suggested neither the one nor the other. "In instances where the accused employe denies the allegations made by the FBI and, for reasons of national security the FBI refuses to permit confrontation of the witnesses against the employe or the opportunity to cross-examine such witnesses," his letter declares, "it seems to me that the department (Interior) should have the option of using its own investigating staff to develop the kind of evidence which can be used in an open trial of the individual."

Moreover, Mr. Davidson points out, very sensibly we think, a danger which arises inescapably from failure to provide this sort of protection for accused persons. "It is possible," he observes, "that in some instances subversive individuals may be continued in Government employment because of the unwillingness of loyalty boards to convict on the basis of hearsay and unsubstantiated evidence. In such instances, the Government itself has no adequate protection." If this concern for the efficacy of the loyalty program and for the rights of individuals be treason—make the most of it.

Pulling Together

Senator Carl A. Hatch has added an impressive and constructive supplement to Secretary Marshall's plea for prompt enactment of the European recovery program. "If we procrastinate, if we delay, if we quibble, and if we divide," he told the Senate yesterday, "historians of the future may write that such discord, disunity, indecision and inaction by us marked the beginning of the downfall of the Republic." That is strong language from a restrained and thoughtful legislator. But he used it deliberately; for, in spite of his faith and confidence in the American system of government, he is deeply concerned over the strong admixture of partisanship with statesmanship in the recent discussion of this issue. "I am afraid," Senator Hatch declared, "I do fear the deadly, destructive effect of party politics in this year of fate and decision."

We can detect no partisanship in the Senator's attitude. His report from the people with whom he communicated during the recess of Congress is to the effect that they believe both the Democrats and Republicans, both Congress and the President, are playing politics with the inflation issues that are so closely allied to European relief. With him, we believe that the people have little interest in "who killed Cock Robin?"—meaning the OPA. Their interest is not so much to fix the blame for past mistakes as to secure effective action in meeting existing problems. The very idea of a Republican or a Democratic recovery program or organization for Europe is absurd, and the same may be said of anti-inflation measures at home. In both cases the nature of the problem calls for national policies that will command the respect and cooperation of the great majority of the people.

Senator Hatch's concrete proposal is that the Republican and Democratic Policy Committees of the Senate sit with the Committee on Foreign Relations throughout its hearings and discussion of the Marshall Plan. In other words, let the leaders of the Senate, representing both parties, give shape to this momentous policy with the aid and guidance of Secretary Marshall and the President. The same procedure could be followed in the House. Or, preferably, Senate and House leaders of both parties could meet to discuss the matter in the spirit of statesmanship that has actuated Senator Hatch's remarks.

The same technique, Mr. Hatch thinks, could profitably be applied in working out an anti-inflation policy. In that case the policy committees would sit with the Committee on Banking and Currency. This would be nothing more than a common sense application of the principles underlying the Congressional Reorganization Act, for one of its primary purposes was to center the attention of Congress upon major policies and to improve the mechanisms of leadership in getting such policies enacted. Every move toward this end should work to the advantage of legislators representing both parties. For, as Senator Hatch says, the public is "sick and tired of politics taking precedence over the country's welfare." In our opinion, the people are so aroused about inflation and the situation in Europe that Congress cannot fail to deal with them constructively without undercutting its own prestige and thereby weakening the cause of democracy.

Export Licensing

The Department of Commerce deserves to be congratulated for abandoning the practice of licensing exports on a historical basis and adopting a new method of procedure that will put export trading on a more competitive basis. Heretofore it has been the policy to reserve the bulk of export quotas for established exporting firms, their quotas being based on the business done in a prewar year base period. However, as the department explains, exporting firms that converted to war production have been given ample opportunity to regain their prewar status in export trade. Moreover, the historical method of selecting exporters has become more and more anachronistic, tending to stifle competition by preventing new firms from competing with entrenched exporting enterprises.

Congress took cognizance of this situation at the special session by incorporating in the Anti-Inflation Act a provision authorizing the use of price criteria in the licensing of exports "either by giving preference among otherwise comparable applications to those which provide for the lowest prices, or, in exceptional circumstances, by fixing reasonable mark-ups in export prices over domestic prices." The Office of International Trade (Department of Commerce) is therefore taking steps to modify its licensing policy in accordance with this authorization by granting export licenses hereafter on the basis of the lowest competitive price charged for comparable materials under similar conditions. As a result the way will be open for wider competition in export trade. The change of policy will also enable importing countries to conserve their limited dollar exchange balances by discouraging a form of export profiteering that has created resentment abroad and subjected us to deserved criticism.

Safety In The Air

The final report of the President's Special Board of Inquiry on Air Safety is by no standard flamboyant. It recommends no earth-shaking, or rather, sky-shaking changes. It is concerned more with methods than with gadgets and panaceas. Indeed, the most justifiable criticism of the report is that it is not more specific. This lack of specificity undoubtedly was due to the effort to achieve unanimity on the part of the five board members, an effort which, unfortunately, did not succeed. Despite its general character, however, the report is on the whole a factual, documented study of air safety practices that should serve as a guidebook both for the airlines and for governmental agencies dealing with aviation.

In view of the attempts at conciliation, it is surprising to have the dissent of Milton W. Arnold, vice president of the Air Transport Association, on the ground that recommendations concerning aviation economic problems were presented under a "cloak of safety." Presumably this objection has root in the board's cautious suggestion that base pay of pilots be increased so as to lessen their dependence on actual flying hours and hence minimize the impetus to fly in bad weather. In similar vein the board cites for emulation the retirement plans now operated by five airlines. In both these instances we think Mr. Arnold has taken a mistakenly narrow view. This is a case in which airline safety and airline economics are indivisible. Moreover, the safety board's concern with this problem seems wholly legitimate in view of the broad mandate given it by President Truman.

Perhaps the most significant innovation recommended by the report is that airlines appoint full-time, high-level safety directors to review and analyze safety practices. Safety directors already have proved their value in many lines of industry. The innovation is one we should think airlines would welcome as a token of their acceptance of primary responsibility for air safety, especially in view of their particularly vulnerable status. Another important recommendation certain to have the approval of the commercial airlines is the suggestion that governmental agencies be given authority to require noncertificated and contract carriers to meet the same safety standards as the old-line companies. The report also shows a proper interest in such items as the installation of electronic altimeters, called for in an earlier report, standardized inspection procedure, methods of preventing and extinguishing fires, and pilot and mechanic training programs. These are points on which there should be little controversy.

It is perhaps regrettable that, possibly to avoid further altercation, the report did not go into the question why there has not been more widespread adoption of known safety devices for bad weather navigation and landing. Such an inquiry would have shown, first of all, the foolish parsimony of Congress in cutting appropriations for installation of such devices at airports. Beyond this it would have disclosed the inability of the airlines so far to get together in a concerted attack on the problem of bad-weather flying. Such an attack assuredly would cost money, a great deal of money, even with governmental help. But it is, in our opinion, a prime prerequisite to a really comprehensive approach to safety in the air.

Happy Choice

The long quest for a new Assistant Secretary of State for Public Affairs to take Mr. William Benton's place has yielded the right man in Ambassador George V. Allen. His first and biggest job will be to chart the expansion of the Voice of America broadcasts and other aspects of our foreign information program to the level called for by our tremendous effort to resuscitate Europe. In this connection Mr. Allen has the great advantage of first-hand experience in one of the world's hot spots as Ambassador to Iran for nearly two years. He is credited with the major role in bolstering Iran to defend her integrity against Soviet pressure and aggression in Azerbaijan. He has been in the front line of the kind of intimidation and vituperation that Moscow is pouring out everywhere. By the same token he is in an excellent position to know the importance of an effective American answer.

In another connection Mr. Allen's appointment is promising. He is a career officer, and, moreover, a career officer with previous acquaintance with the media he will be using. He thus brings to his job no suspicion of nepotism, no political taint. He should be able to command the confidence of Congress where his predecessor could not. President Truman and Secretary Marshall are to be commended for their choice. This is a case in which the delay in locating the right man for the job seems to have paid off handsomely.

POSSESSION

Because the ground was ghostless, and no bones laid vaulted in protecting perpetual shade, because the wild palmetto was innocent of broken lives or upright solved in its scent, he walked his untaught acres as if he were among his pines a foundling, with no right there,
and doubtful of possessing his fierce new land without the holding gesture of forbears' hand.

But as each wayside morning revealed his own,
he knew a presence near him in tree and stone:
like an unwitting sower he had cast seed upon the fig and myrtle and purple weed, and all his selves had rooted, ageless and fast, upon the rock they fruited and meant to last.
They tugged at him with father's and grand-sire's voice,
and had gathered forbears to weight his choice.

Third Way Out

It is the tendency today to restrict ourselves to but two schools of thought—one, the militant capitalist, and the other, the militant Communist. Each firmly believes that peace and security can be maintained only if it has more military power and more friendly neighbors than the other. Each tends to believe that it has a monopoly on truth and right.

I subscribe to neither of these doctrines, for I believe that they will result sooner or later in a bloodier and more costly war than history has yet known. The third answer to the question of how peace and security can be obtained in our world in our times is, I believe, to make the United Nations work. That is, we must evolve the U. N. into a real world-government organization. Permanent peace is not possible under the conditions of international anarchy existent today. Once we realize that world-wide peace and security can be obtained only by world-wide law and order, half the battle for world government is won.

However, the Russophobes will maintain that a world government that includes Russia is unthinkable, and, besides, Russia would never agree to any form of world government. What the Russian attitude toward world government is, or would be, I don't pretend to know. I do know, however, that in the long run Russia has always acted consistently with her own interests.

If a world government organization were accepted by all other nations, and if this organization were not an instrument to be used against any particular society or ideology, then it would be very difficult to believe that Russia would refuse to join. In connection with these ifs, I think it essential that the powers of a world government be limited, yet extensive enough to prevent any one nation from forcibly dominating another nation . . . Thus neither capitalism nor communism could be threatened by the other by means of force.

White House Balcony

In these inflated times our President is conserving. While other people, even less deserving, are clamoring for houses and such stuff, for him a balcony is quite enough. Apparently the south side of the White House is too sunny. Besides, this construction will save the taxpayer money. With the new economical blinds drawn, to keep him out of sight, what a wonderful spot for the President to sit on a hot summer night. Let's get rid of those ugly awnings that don't last (but I would like to know what kind deteriorate so fast).

Nero had a balcony, and Shakespeare's Juliet, and the British royal family (and Mussolini, I regret); but let us not be influenced by some foreign rendition. The Nation's No. 1 balcony should follow the American tradition. It should be constructed to resemble the rear of a train, so that it could also be used in practice for the coming campaign. And perhaps this very private balcony might be detachable at both ends, so the President could take it back to Missouri with him in case his successor prefers to sit on a patio with his friends.

Message To Russia

I take the position that when a government enslaves its people through the lie that the threat of war exists between it and another government, that the maligned government has the right to make it clear to the enslaved people that they are being duped. This premise I feel is justified on the ground that a government so unprincipled as to lie to its people in this respect is quite as likely to plunge the world into war for the sake of a few more moments of existence on borrowed time.

It is my opinion that if the people of the United States can communicate to the Russian people that there is no threat of war, the Russians made cognizant of freedom from threat of war will free themselves from their present stifling government by a narrow minority group. And the threat to world peace inherent in a wild-eyed dictatorship (which can exist only in an atmosphere charged with the threat of war) will be removed.

It is apparent that the present Russian government believes this too, and prevents by force free interchange of ideas between Russian people and the people of other countries. It follows that, to convince the Russian people there is no threat of war, the American people need a vigorous propaganda program among the Russian people—an underground to surpass all previous undergrounds. It will require large appropriations. It will be dangerous work to the individuals charged with the task. But there are those who are willing to risk their lives for this work. With resourcefulness, we ought to be able to "carry the message to Garcia."

Corporation Taxes

As a Republican I listened with admiration to President Truman's address to Congress. The chief difficulty is: Who can pay for his contemplated benefactions? He said, and said very plainly—soak the corporations!

In my judgment both the Government and Congress are guilty of thievery in the imposition of income taxation on corporation dividends. It is unconscionable double taxation capable of inciting another tea party.

Out in the sagelands where I dwell we discovered that farms left by estates could not be divided economically ad infinitum, so we adopted the family-owned corporate entity as the answer. Now a family of, say, 20 stockholders must pay twice—once as a corporation, again as individual income on dividends from that family corporation. Talk of equal protection of law, due process, or what rot! It is as condemnable as highway robber.

The retirement from Congress of Hon. Everett Dirksen will come as a great shock to the thousands of people who know him or have watched his public career. Trading In Commodity Futures

In his remarks about commodity futures trading in The Washington Post of January 8, Mr. MacDougall, I submit, is not so much lacking in dogmatism as in his knowledge of facts.

"Trading in wheat futures . . . is gambling on fluctuations . . . Nothing at all is bought . . . except a chance on price changes. The terms buy and sell . . . do not mean buy and sell . . . They merely indicate . . . whether bets are to be recorded." So runs the ukase from Mr. MacDougall.

Mankind trades of necessity in many commodities to its benefit, and I assume he is not against all trading in principle. He must admit that it usually involves some form of risk on price fluctuations. Whether the assumption of such risk is justified by a particular person depends on too many individual factors to generalize, but sometimes such risk assumption is criticized as gambling. Now gambling, though difficult to define, is usually understood to involve the creation and assumption of unnecessary and avoidable risks, e.g. horse racing. Speculation, on the other hand (L. speculari—spy out—observe) involves the judgment of facts and circumstances, past, present and prospective, and the calculated assumption of an existing risk with the hope of profit. Mr. Justice Holmes defined it as follows:

"Speculation . . . is the self-adjustment of society to the probable. Its value is well-known as a means of avoiding or mitigating catastrophes, equalizing prices and providing for periods of want. It is true that the success of the strong induces imitation by the weak, and that incompetent persons bring themselves to ruin by undertaking to speculate in their turn. But legislatures and courts generally have recognized that the natural evolutions of a complex society are to be touched only with a very cautious hand . . ."

Under a capitalistic system and a free economy, there happens to be an existing risk in commodity fluctuations which someone must bear. If the producer or processor bore it, he would be subject to the possibility of being put out of business by ruinous losses. He certainly would be unable to concentrate solely on his producing or processing margin between costs and selling price, if harassed by the consequence of violent fluctuations. Neither would the cost of the product be kept down if allowance for such risks had to be considered. Therefore he "hedges," or "lays off" the risk in the commodity futures market.

The miller (as a simple example) buys actual wheat for the milling of flour. To "lay off" his risk he sells the equivalent amount of wheat in the futures market. He thereby enters into a legal contract under which he agrees to make delivery of a specific quantity of certified contract wheat at a definite time and place. He must either make this delivery or buy back his contract. If at a lower price, his contract profit offsets his loss in actual wheat—and vice versa.

The "trader" or speculator stands ready to perform the very essential function of buying the contract which the miller sells. If he did not exist, the only other buyer would be someone needing a "buying hedge." At times of crop movement, with selling hedgers overwhelming buying hedgers, fluctuations and losses would be violent without the offsetting volume of speculative buying. The point for Mr. MacDougall is however that something is very definitely bought and sold.

As to the broker, he has no more "recorded a bet" than a real estate broker who has acted as intermediary between buyer and seller of a piece of real estate, rendering as he does either an invoice for actual grain or a statement showing the difference due between buying and selling prices of the contract. In both the wheat and real estate transactions, there has been involved a legal and enforceable contract to make and take delivery.

If our system of private enterprise is to survive, I respectfully suggest that when attacked by such arguments as Mr. MacDougall's there be more vigorous and vocal defenders of it. Parenthetically may I add that despite all the attacks on speculation to which our marketing system has been subjected, it still has enabled us to have the cheapest wheat in the world.

Divorce And Economics

By Malvina Lindsay

Reno Recession

WE MAY NOT, after all, be headed toward one divorce to every two marriages, as has been so gloomily predicted. It looks now as if the divorce rate, variously estimated at one to every three or four marriages might recede in 1948.

The divorce slump reported from Reno, Nev., chief divorce mart, indicates that the high cost of living may be accomplishing what lectures, sermons, clinics and laws have failed to do. It also may be an economic portent. For both divorce and marriage volume have generally risen with prosperity, shrunk with depression.

Gambling, night clubs, liquor, luxury goods have been skidding—and now divorce. Some predict that marriage and birth rates will follow, especially since the housing shortage is a bearish influence on both. The marriage rate in the depression '30s fell to its lowest ebb since 1887, when statistics were first gathered.

Yet doubled up family life might also be expected to contribute to marital dissension and separation—and frequently does. But divorce is something else. It costs money.

Hence its ups and downs are not wholly an index of moral or social moods. While the divorce boom of wartime and thereafter was caused to a large extent by hasty marriages, family upheavals and the emotional instability of the times, yet part of it was due to prosperity. Many persons who had been waiting from depression days until they could afford divorces finally got them.

THE CLEARING up of this backlog of divorces may also help to bring down the divorce rate in 1948. Also by now a majority of the marriage mistakes of wartime have been ended legally. A more sober, settling-down mood is spreading through the country. All of these things, together with flatter pocketbooks, may reverse the divorce tide.

Since those who get divorces at Reno are relatively well to do, the slump there will probably spread much further. If living gets more difficult, a great increase in "poor man's divorce"—desertion, may be expected. This has been growing steadily, and always speeds up in hard times.

Marriage discord also, if not divorce, increases in hard times. Authorities on family relations rate money troubles high as a disruptive of marriage. Many who can't afford divorces for such trouble substitute desertion. Hence a divorce recession is no guarantee of an increasing marital happiness. But lack of money to rush to the divorce court may prevent divorce on impulse.

THE BIG divorce boom, rising from 1939 on, outdistanced even the marriage rate. It caused wide consternation, and set churchmen, social scientists and educators into action to strengthen the family. One result of this will be the White House Conference on Family Life to be held in Washington in May under auspices of 110 organizations.

At the usual gatherings of learned men and women during the recent holiday season human relations, especially those of the family, competed for attention with atoms, meteorites and germs. Many social scientists felt that research in family living was needed on a much greater scale, and that in this, emphasis should be put on the qualities that led to success in marriage rather than on those that led to failure. Apropos of this, both college presidents and church leaders are pointing out that divorce is less prevalent among the college educated and among church adherents.

The need of study on the problems of family life of the future was brought out by sociologists. One of these developments will be the increase of three-generation families because of the growing population of older people.

The spread of education for marriage by churches, colleges and schools, and the development of marriage counseling and clinics, have been marked in the last year. The many constructive movements in this field give promise that eventually divorce inflation may be halted by something more fundamental than the high cost of lawyers and alimony.

GSI Strike

The present GSI strike is a small affair but it expresses the same attitude on the part of labor that has earmarked many of the larger and more serious strikes. That attitude is one that defies and tries to take advantage of the law. Why should not everyone be willing, if called upon to do so, to sign a statement that he does not belong to the Communist Party? The Communists represent a direct threat to our way of life and no loyal American should be unwilling to sign such a statement—he should be glad of the opportunity to help in separating real Americans from the ever-active enemy.

Why does not labor find one way of complying with the letter and spirit of the laws passed to regulate labor? Instead, the leaders and their legal staffs spend tremendous thought and energy hunting ways in which not to comply with the law. If labor spent as much thought and effort in trying to make the labor laws work as it does in trying to find loopholes and ways of keeping them from working we would have much more harmonious dealings between labor, capital, and the public, and national industrial progress would be much smoother. Financial loss to labor itself would be less than under the present policies of labor leaders.

'Ships And ERP'

A Communication

"THERE IS a certain superficial plausibility" to your consistent support of all and any proposals to turn American merchant ships over to foreign ship operators. However, "Ships and ERP," your editorial of January 3, is one of a number of editorials in your generally well-informed paper which deal with the American merchant marine on the basis of a regrettable lack of factual information.

You ask that the "undeniable need for an adequate American merchant marine . . . be balanced, however, against the also compelling need for European nations to restore their waterborne commerce as an essential part of their economic recovery." The fact is, as confirmed by the Paris report of the 16 Marshall Plan nations, that the prewar fleets of the 16 nations are already restored completely except in small coastwise ships and passenger ships, in both of which types the United States, too, is deficient.

Thanks to the transfer of over 1400 American-flag ships to foreign countries since the end of the war, most of them by the United States Government, a fact which your editorials do not reveal, the recovery of the merchant shipping of our wartime allies and even of countries such as Italy has far exceeded the recovery of all other industries hit by the war.

YOU ARE surprised that American shipping opposes a measure "which by placing older vessels in service and thus minimizing the danger of a world surplus would be an extra inducement for new shipping construction at home." The fact is that the "older vessels" to which you refer are Liberty ships, good (in spite of their slow speed) for 20 years of successful competition in the hands of nations with lower living standards and, therefore, lower operating cost. A world surplus of dry-cargo tonnage already exists. It has already led to the return of several hundred ships by American operators to our national defense reserve fleet since last summer. The 500 ships which ERP proposes to transfer abroad over and above the more than 1400 already transferred would immediately replace 500 ships now manned by American seamen and officers, operated by American steamship companies and paying charter hire and taxes to the United States Treasury.

The American shipping industry did not oppose the transfer of United States ships to foreign nations to help them recover their wartime losses. Except for vessel types of which we are short ourselves, we have done more than was necessary to restore prewar fleets, in addition to helping set up new fleets. It is time to stop, not only because we cannot afford to whittle down our defense reserve fleet but also because of the grave threat to the successful operation of the ships which we retain, if further fleets of American vessels are turned over to our low-cost competitors.

While under the Paris plan, which called for transfer of "only" about 170 additional American dry-cargo ships, the dry-cargo fleets of the 16 nations would very soon greatly exceed their prewar tonnage, our own merchant fleet, on the other hand, which before the war carried less than a third of our foreign water-borne trade, now carries just about 50 per cent. As several million tons of modern fast ships now under construction abroad (without counting future building which may be affected by a reduction of steel exports under ERP) enter the competition at low foreign wages, our participation in the carrying of our foreign trade will continue to diminish in the direction of prewar impotence even without the transfer of a single additional United States merchant ship abroad. The transfer of 500 more, however, whether permanently or temporarily, cannot but deal a death blow to all aspirations of maintaining in operation a United States merchant fleet at least of prewar proportions, and a minimum shipbuilding industry as well, which bitter war experience should have taught us were utterly inadequate for our national security.

YOU STATE that "the Nation's long-run security . . . depends on keeping a vigorous shipbuilding industry alive through a construction program," rather than on a reserve of ships. The fact is that no ships will be built unless American steamship companies, with or without subsidies, can operate them successfully. This is impossible when the world freight market is flooded with liberty ships given away under ERP and profitably employed by low-cost operators under foreign flags, with what you call "prohibitive freight charges" radically reduced far below the break-even point of the American steamship operator.

You support the conclusion of the Harriman Committee that transfer of United States vessels already abroad should be conditioned on a "commensurate reduction of European shipbuilding programs." The fact is, however, that legislation sent to Congress not only fails to so condition the transfer of ships but proposes the unconditional transfer of nearly three times the number of ships desired by the 16 nations and conditionally recommended by the Harriman Committee. European merchant marines are already so completely restored in the type of ships transfer of which ERP proposes that there is no more justification for export of scarce steel to build more large dry-cargo ships than there is for the transfer of more large dry-cargo ships. On the other hand, we must help Europe build coastwise passenger and cargo vessels which are badly needed.

YOU SUPPORT the proposed transfer of more ships, because as you say "it would reduce the dollar drain by enabling them to haul their own cargoes and pay crews in their own currencies." The fact is that this saving is far smaller than ERP estimates it.

Moreover, as the shipping papers of our great port cities reveal, these nations to which ERP would turn over more hundreds of our ships, have large fleets of their newest and fastest ships operating far from home, for instance, between the United States and South America or the Far East, directly competing with our own merchant marine. They contribute very few if any dollars to the economies of their home countries—far fewer than they would earn, or save, transporting relief cargoes and otherwise operating from and to their own countries.

YOU PROPOSE that the ERP nations get our ships so that they can pay the crews in their own currencies. The fact is that many of these nations are short of manpower for urgent domestic rehabilitation and production needs while past transfer of over 1400 American ships abroad have already left behind large numbers of unemployed American seamen and officers. You point to the ships now "rusting in dead storage." The fact is that under orders of a wise Congress these ships are not "rusting" but are being carefully preserved.

Once again, our merchant marine is considered "expendable." Actually, shipping seems to be the only American industry which would suffer so severely under a plan which would help assure continued prosperity to other parts of our industry and agriculture. Moreover, ERP is not the only, although by far the gravest, attack on the American merchant marine. Under the bizonal arrangement, for instance, under which we take over British expenditures in Germany, American steamship companies and seamen, through the means of the diversion under the arrangement of a large part of our shipments to Germany from American to British ships, have been singled out to make good the extra cost to us.

THERE is also Mr. Hoover's proposal which you so strongly supported, that large numbers of American ships be turned over to Germany, and presumably Japan, to reduce the occupation cost to the American taxpayer. Again it is the American shipping industry which is to be sacrificed.

But it is also the American taxpayer and the American people who will suffer. In two wars, a neglected and little respected American merchant marine was suddenly revealed as a vital necessity for our survival. If there had been more merchant ships sooner, World War II would have been won sooner.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Vandenberg's Cooperation

AS A SENDOFF for the European Recovery Program in its journey through Congress, Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg gave Congress another example of the meaning of cooperation on a bipartisan foreign policy. The Republican leadership in the House could not do better than to study this latest object lesson and profit from it.

Childs

When President Truman at the end of the special session last year sent the recovery proposal to Congress, he included in it a recommendation for a total of 17 billion dollars to be authorized for a four-year program. That immediately became the target for those who wanted to block the whole idea of a recovery plan.

It was a handy target the President had set up for them. They could talk about the impossibility under the Constitution of Congress committing another Congress to spend large sums of money. They could talk about offering Europe a four-year guarantee so that Europeans would sit back and wait for the gravy train to arrive on annual schedule.

That was, in fact, the way some of the House Republican leaders were beginning to talk. Those leaders, with the honorable exception of Chairman Charles A. Eaton of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, whose influence in party councils is not conspicuous, are still isolationist in their outlook. They could not resist the temptation to make mischievous politics out of that big, round sum of 17 billion dollars.

VANDENBERG felt strongly that it was a grievous mistake to provide specifically for four years of appropriations in the ERP bill. He recognized at once that this would be the biggest hurdle to adoption of the program.

But instead of sniping he took a constructive course. He wrote to Secretary of State Marshall suggesting that the four-year authorization be cut out of the bill. The reply from the Administration was equally constructive. Undersecretary of State Robert A. Lovett said that President Truman had agreed with the suggestion.

In the hearings and in the debate it will be made plain that it is a continuing program, which successive Congresses will be expected to carry on. But it also will be made plain that the participating European nations will sign businesslike contracts calling for specific production levels at specific dates.

With the responsibility of shepherding ERP through the Senate, Vandenberg is acutely aware of the need for speed. He hopes that the hearings before his Foreign Relations Committee can be full and explicit on every phase of the program, yet limited to a few weeks. He said hopefully that the hearings before his committee might be wound up in three weeks. But this drew murmurs of protest from some committee members.

A SECOND stumbling block and time-killer foreseen by Vandenberg is on the issue of how the program shall be administered. In the House, conscientious, hard working Representative Christian Herter is for a separate Government corporation with broad independent powers to supervise the aid program. But this opens the way for duplication and conflict. Obviously, the ERP will be the base of the Nation's foreign policy. Decisions made by the ERP administrator will cast a long shadow around the world.

This administrator might become a sort of second Secretary of State, competing with the one duly appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate. Likewise, his subordinates in each European country would be competing with the United States Ambassadors in those countries. As Vandenberg has said, he doesn't want a second Secretary of State.

But again, his thinking was constructive. He has called on Brookings Institution in Washington to make a thorough survey of the whole problem. Brookings economists and foreign affairs experts were already studying the whole question of overlapping authority, particularly during World War II. On the basis of these studies they will make recommendations to Vandenberg.

From Senator Carl Hatch, on the Democratic side of the aisle, comes high praise for Vandenberg and with it a suggestion for extending the kind of cooperation that the Senator from Michigan typifies. Hatch proposes that both the Republican and Democratic policy committees sit with the Senate Foreign Relations Committee through the hearings on the recovery program. In this way leaders of both parties would have the facts and they could then unite in pushing the recovery program through the Senate.

Congressmen of both political parties who understand the disaster that would follow failure of a recovery program will have to work seriously and earnestly for cooperation. Otherwise, political partisanship will cut in on the very core of the bipartisan program.

The Gallup Poll

Atheism Highest in France Where Most Reds Deny God

By George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Jan. 9.—Whereas more than 9 out of 10 Americans say they believe in God, in France the proportion indicating belief in a Deity is much smaller—two out of three. Among French Communists there is overwhelming denial of the existence of God.

This fresh evidence that the struggle between communism and western democracies has many of the elements of a holy war is shown in the results of an international poll conducted by the American Institute of Public Opinion and 10 of its 11 overseas affiliates. The survey dealt with belief in God and belief in an afterlife. Of the 11 nations covered, France showed the lowest proportion of people believing in God, while Canada, Australia, Brazil and the United States showed the highest.

Far less agreement was found on the question of whether there is a life after death. The vote ranged from a high of 8 per cent in Canada to a low of 40 per cent in Sweden and England.

International polls on a common question are conducted approximately once a month by the affiliated poll-taking organizations, which last year organized an International Association of Public Opinion (Gallup) Institutes.

The question used by the participating institutes this month included:

Do you, personally, believe in God?

The vote:

	Yes	No	Don't know
Brazil	96%	3%	1%
Australia	95	5	....
Canada	95	2	3
U. S.	94	3	3
Norway	84	7	9
Finland	83	5	12
Holland	80	14	6
Sweden	80	8	12
Denmark	80	9	11
France	66	20	14

The vote in France according to political party affiliation shows these revealing differences:

	Yes	No	Don't know
Communists	17%	64%	19%
Socialists	50	29	21
Union of Left	62	18	20
RPF (Gaullists)	88	5	7
MRP	92	5	3
PRL	93	7	....

In short, the political spectrum in France from left to right corresponds closely with the religious spectrum from atheism to overwhelming belief in God.

In England the question was put in a somewhat different way, with the following results:

Which of these statements comes closest to your belief?

A. There is a personal God	45%
B. There is some sort of spirit or vital force which controls life	39	84%
C. I am not sure there is any sort of God or life force	16

The issue of life after death was put to voters in the same countries with the following results:

Do you believe in life after death?

	Yes	No	No opin.
Canada	78%	9%	13%
Brazil	78	18	4
Norway	71	15	14
Finland	69	11	20
U. S.	68	13	19
Holland	68	26	6
Australia	63	20	17
France	58	22	20
Denmark	55	27	18
Sweden	49	17	34
Britain	49	27	24

In the United States people most frequently think of the after-life as a life of complete happiness and joy, although some conceive of it in terms of reward for goodness and punishment for earthly sins.

Every one was asked: "How do you imagine life after death to be?"

The principal replies:

1. Complete happiness, joy, peace, quiet.

2. Reward for virtue, punishment for sin; heaven or hell.

3. Dream-like, disembodied, inanimate, spiritual.

4. As described in the Bible.

Faith in God diminishes as people get away from nature and the outdoors. For example, in the City of Copenhagen, Denmark, 17 per cent, or one person in every six, does not believe in God's existence. In the rural Danish countryside, only 4 per cent deny God.

Faith in God varies by age. In the United States fewer young people believe in God than older people, although the difference is not as great as in some other countries. In Denmark, one in four under the age of 35 years either denies God's existence or expresses doubts. But among people over 50 years of age, one in 12 doubts or denies.

D. C. Gas Sales Reach 99-Year Peak in 1947

By S. Oliver Goodman

Washington Gas Light Co. yesterday reported a 34 per cent increase in December sales and the biggest sales year during 1947, in its 99-year history.

Last month's sendout totaled 16,876,120 therms, an increase of 34 per cent over the 12,552,054 in the same 1946 month.

The year's sales aggregated 133,945,360 therms, a gain of 14 per cent over the 117,293,878 in the previous year.

Principal factor in the 1947 record was the growth of the company's business. Thousands of new homes were connected with gas mains. Conversions from other types of heating units were reported at a new peak.

The company in recent months has announced plans for new construction to meet the record demand for gas in this area. Since the war end, all limitations on use of gas for space heating have been removed. The change-over to natural gas was completed during 1947, assuring a steady and economical source.

Rapid expansion in gas sales is illustrated by these comparative monthly figures in therms for the last two years:

January	14,890,841	15,028,255
February	16,057,802	14,854,462
March	16,138,861	11,809,793
April	12,249,348	10,026,246
May	9,665,585	9,082,111
June	7,773,346	7,371,744
July	6,801,372	6,336,019
August	6,368,430	6,081,071
September	6,734,486	6,596,130
October	8,806,741	8,039,427

STORE SALES: Washington department store sales in the week ended January 4 advanced 5 per cent over the like 1947 period, the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond reported yesterday. For the four weeks ended January 4 (covering the peak of the Christmas shopping season), local store sales were 15 per cent higher than in the similar period of the previous year.

SHORTAGE WANES: Although railroad freight carloadings for the week ended January 3 were about the same as those in the corresponding week in 1947, the reported average daily freight car shortage for the 1948 week was 1305 cars, as compared with 16,290 during the same week last year, William T. Faricy, president of the Association of American Railroads, said yesterday. The greatest reduction in the shortage, Faricy said, was in box cars, which showed a reported shortage of only 291 during the week ended January 3, while during the correesponding week last year it was 12,333.

SALES UP 36 PER CENT: Sears, Roebuck & Co. announced December gross sales were $267,572,523, or 36.2 per cent above December, 1946. The 11-month total was $1,955,792,544, or 25.3 per cent above 1946 and the highest on the books of the mail order firm.

G. C. Murphy Co. reported sales of $119,359,580 for 1947, an 8.2 per cent increase over the 1946 figure of $110,327,509. December sales were $20,603,445, an increase of 19.9 per cent over the $17,185,036 reported for December, 1946.

One on the Aisle—

Lady Luck Is Hoarse

A Horatio Alger Has Throat Ills

By Richard L. Coe

SHOW PEOPLE: When it comes to "human interest" around the theater, few stories can top that of Henry Michel, the lead of the National's "Carousel." . . . One week Mike was driving a truck for Ford, the next he was signed for the top spot on Broadway of the Theater Guild's "Carousel." . . . No one knows better than strapping, good-looking Mike that this has been a blessing with a strong "if" clause . . . From the time he was a youngster working in a delicatessen to help support his widowed mother and younger brother, Mike wanted to sing for a living . . . Everybody who employed him had to put up with on-duty singing and more than one asked him to shut up . . . Before he went into the Navy, which he served as a soundman second class on a destroyer in the Pacific, Mike had less than a year of vocal instruction . . . When he got out and went back to truck driving and bossing laboring outfits for Ford, his understanding wife gave him "permission" to try out at Shubert and Theater Guild auditions . . . He got an offer from the first, but it meant going on the road right away and giving up his lessons with Maestro Corona . . . The Guild, however, heard him with 60 others and signed him on the spot to stay in New York . . . He replaced John Raitt as Billy Bigelow over a year ago, at first several times a week, then took over completely to the cheers of Gotham reporters.

Now Mike's got a cold in this cinus capital and he's worrying about his voice . . . It's not been at its best since he's been here, but though Mike feels worried, it's still a better natural voice than many . . . Somehow, because Mike's so conscious of his sudden, fabulous success and has his feet firmly on the ground, we're confident "Carousel" is only the first in a rich career . . . Larry Tibbett, you remember, began in much the same way, singing for the joy of singing . . . Mike's developed no "side" since his remarkable rise: His best pal in "Carousel" and his roommate is a minor player, Warren Harr, who, Mike will tell you, knows a lot more about singing than he does . . . And success hasn't been without personal troubles . . . After the birth of their 4-month-old daughter, Cheryl, Mrs. Michel has been critically ill at their home in Jersey City . . . She's out of the woods now, though, and Mike rejoices he's able to spend weekends at home . . . Quite the reverse of the swaggering Bigelow, whom he plays so handsomely, Mike's a quiet, soft-spoken guy offstage . . . Despite our criticism of him on our "Carousel" review, follow his future with real interest and affection.

HELEN HAYES has decided on her next play, which means she most likely will not be bringing "Happy Birthday" for her hometown folks to argue about . . . She'll star for the Theater Guild next season in "Next to My Blonde," the Parisian hit of Marcel Achard, which travelers will recall as "Aupres de ma Blonde" . . . S. N. Behrman is doing the adaptation, at which there are few better.

ALAN SCHNEIDER, who left the staff of Catholic University's speech and drama department to join Theater, Inc., in New York, has a new, extracurricular assignment . . . He'll direct the Experimental Theater's third offering of the season set to open February 8, "A Long Way From Home," by Randall Goodman and Walter Carroll . . . This transfers Gorki's novel, "The Lower Depths," to Durham, N. C., and will employ an all-Negro cast . . . The ET's current play, "Skipper Next to God," with John Garfield, is such a hit that Blevins Davis has taken it over and, with what profits there may be going to ET, will continue the run for two more weeks at Gotham's Maxine Elliott Theater.

RICHARD TAUBER'S death in London removes a remarkable voice from the theater. . . . The Austrian-born tenor, who naturalized into an Englishman, never received the success in this country he did abroad. . . . Last year's New York revival of "The Land of Smiles" came late, but one who heard him sing the melodic title song, which Tauber did some 15,000 times, will never forget the caressing quality he gave it. . . . His was the Sinatra approach with a German accent.

JOSEPHINE BAKER'S back to the States, singing in Boston in a new revue, "Paris Sings Again." . . . We wonder if Josephine remembers the command performance she gave in Cairo for King Farouk. . . . After a rough period of hiding out from the Jerries in North Africa, the St. Louis singer had few costumes of her old days of splendor. . . . But one had a remarkable history, flown to her by an understanding Air Force officer. . . . It was the costume Ethel Waters had used when imitating Josephine in "As Thousands Cheer." . . . When Josie bowed to the then-bearded King, she was wearing a 10-year-old costume that had been made for someone else in which to imitate her.

ANNIE AS AN EXTRA: Ann Sheridan is in Humphrey Bogart's "Treasure of the Sierra Madre," though she gets no billing and you'll have to look carefully to catch her. The action called for Bogart to leer at a pretty Mexican lass. Director John Huston, right, called for a bit player who turned out to be Annie, her strawberry locks capped by a black wig. Bogey looked at her closely, blew up in his lines when he recognized her. The picture will be along soon at the Warner

Reserve Bank Rediscount Rate Hike Set

By The Associated Press

The Federal Reserve Board yesterday approved an increase in the rediscount rate from 1 to 1¼ per cent by 9 of the 12 Federal Reserve Banks, effective Monday.

The nine banks are those at New York, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Richmond, Atlanta, Chicago, St. Louis, Minneapolis and Dallas.

The increase had been foretold in testimony of Reserve Board Chairman Marriner S. Eccles before a congressional committee last month.

Eccles said then the purpose of the action would be to restrain expansion of bank credit.

The rate is that at which member banks of the Federal Reserve System can discount their loan paper to gain further funds for lending.

Higher rates are considered a restraint on the member banks if they are lacking in reserve funds and must discount their loan paper to get further funds for lending.

The Federal Reserve Board's latest report shows member banks as a whole have more than a billion dollars in excess reserves with the Federal Reserve Banks, giving them a considerable cushion of lending power.

The rate remains unchanged in the Federal Reserve Banks at Boston, San Francisco and, Kansas City.

Poor Goods Hit

Soviet Acts To End Home Labor Abuses

Moscow, Jan. 9 (U.P.).—The government in a sweeping decree moved today to break up the "home labor" system under which, it has been complained, industrial profiteers have been able to exploit workers.

At the same time the Moscow press campaigned against production and sale of unsatisfactory consumer goods and warned those responsible they face prison terms of up to eight years.

An official decree ruled that:

1. Producers' cooperative organizations may employ workers in their homes only when such persons are unable to go to factories because of physical disability or, in the case of women, large families need supervision.

2. Home workers may not be employed under a system of group payments by middlemen.

3. Home workers must get the same "mass cultural and educational work" as those in factories.

The new regulations are intended to end a system by which ambitious middlemen have paid home workers low wages for work which they themselves claim to be performing for cooperatives.

The newspaper Bolshevik today denounced factory, wholesale and retail managers for producing and marketing unsatisfactory goods.

It said that part of the blame for defective goods lay with the heads of the various state trusts who encouraged factory managers to race after quantity while quality suffered. It named six Moscow area factories which it said were producing badly made overcoats, dresses, boots and bad locks and nails.

Dingell Hits Jobless Tax Revision Plan

Representative John D. Dingell (D., Mich.) yesterday made public an attack against a strongly backed proposal which he said would "destroy the whole Federal-State system of unemployment compensation and the public employment service."

The plan, recommended by the National Association of Manufacturers and the National Governors' Conference, calls for an amendment to the Unemployment Tax Act to permit all revenues for this purpose collected by the States to remain in those States.

At present, the law provides that 10 per cent of each State's levies are forwarded to the Federal Government. This, in turn, remits most of the money back to the States, where it is used to finance the administration of State unemployment compensation systems.

Amount to States Varies

Industrially rich States, however, get less money back in the form of Federal grants than the 10 per cent they contribute. On the other hand, 25 States, mostly in the South and West, get more in grants than their original contributions.

A bill now before the House Ways and Means Committee, and a report before the Senate Finance Committee would end this arrangement.

Federal officials concerned with the unemployment compensation program oppose the suggested amendment, on grounds it would remove all Federal control from State systems of unemployment insurance, and would end the requirement that States must meet certain minimum standards set down by the Federal Government.

Has Strong Support

Officials declare that the move to amend the law has strong support and may be acted on by this session of Congress.

Representative Dingell reflected that concern in a speech this week to the Special Tax and Fiscal Committee of the Governors Conference meeting here.

The proposed amendment has been condemned by the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and is now being fought by the AFL.

Summer White House Proposed at Cape Henry

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 9 (AP).—Virginia Beach rotarians, acting on a suggestion made by the Rev. W. H. T. Squires, local historian, will ask Virginia Congressmen to designate a site at Cape Henry to serve as a summer white house for the President of the United States, the club announced today.

State Report On Problems Due Today

A report on States' problems will be presented here today by the board of managers of the Council of State Governments.

Unemployment, grants-in-aid and overlapping of State and Federal taxes highlight the report, Governor Horace Hildreth of Maine, board member, said yesterday.

Governor Millard Caldwell of Florida, council president, has presided over the two-day conference at the Mayflower Hotel which ends today. Sixty-three "state representatives" have attended.

On Thursday, preceding the board conferences, the Joint Conference of Representatives of Congress and the Governors' Conference, composd of 15 governors and members of four congressional committees, also met at the Mayflower. Several governors, such as Hildreth, also were represented on the council board.

It urged, according to Hildreth, chairman, that Congress "correct by Federal law the income tax inequities existing between the community property and the non-community property States."

The second major recommendation was that "the Federal Government should relinquish to the States the Federal tax on employers levied to cover the administrative expenses of the State employment security programs."

Thursday's joint tax conference marked the second time Governors and Congressmen have met in joint session to discuss mutual problems, Hildreth said. The first occasion was in Chicago at a similar conference last September.

Tall Cedars List Full Ceremonial

The first full ceremonial of the 1948 season for Capitol Forest No. 104, Tall Cedars of Lebanon, will be presented tonight in the lodge room at Northeast Masonic Temple, 523 Eighth st. ne., at 8 p. m., it was announced by Elmer Stein, newly-elected grand tall cedar.

Preceding the meeting the Capitol Forest band, with Arthur E. Harper, conducting, will play a half-hour concert. After the ceremonial, refreshments will be served in the banquet hall.

Vegetables Scarce in Canada

Ottawa, Jan. 9 (AP).—Fresh vegetables had virtually disappeared today from Canadian markets, and the high prices of the few still available, together with the leaping costs of other foods, were bringing protests to the government demanding action.

The Ottawa Consumers Association asked Prime Minister W. L. MacKenzie King for an immediate plebiscite on the restoration of price controls. Mrs. Joan Frazer, the secretary, said an unofficial buyers' strike was in progress.

Effects of restriction on fresh food imports under Canada's program to conserve United States dollars are just beginning to be felt.

Prices took a sharp jump upward after Canada's conclusion January 2 of new food contracts with the United Kingdom at substantially higher prices for export beef, bacon, cheese and eggs. The scarcity of fresh vegetables, once imported from the United States, gave food costs an added boost.

About the only fresh vegetables readily obtainable in Canada aside from onions, potatoes, carrots and turnips, were cabbage and celery.

Ideas Offered to Improve Church Programs

Suggestions on how to improve the church's came in our mail this week.

William S. Egbert, general superintendent of the Mount Rainier Christian Church's Bible School, 33d st. and Bunker Hill rd. ne., and former president of the Washington Church Press Association, writes:

"An outdoor bulletin board can be one of the most valuable assets of a church today. Church records show an active membership of 348 the year (1941) our church board was dedicated. The present active membership is 600. Although this increase has been largely due to the personal efforts of the pastor and active workers, a well formulated publicity program, which included newspaper advertising, news articles and the bulletin board, has made a large contribution.

"The publicity committee of this church feels that an outdoor bulletin board, to be most useful, should be properly designed and located where it may be seen by the most people. The message should include an invitation to everyone, indicating that they will be welcomed at all services of the church."

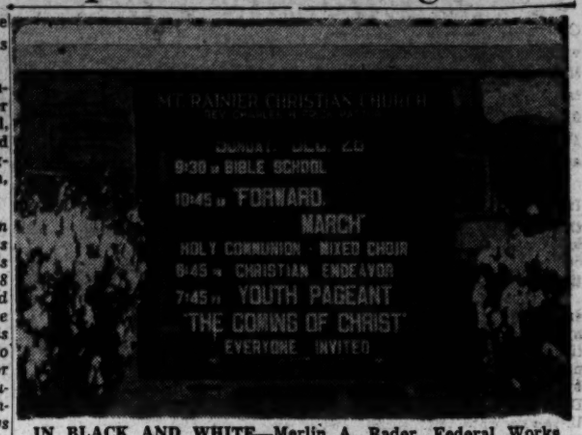
Sharing Talent Urged

The Rev. Berwyn E. Jones, pastor of the Pershing Drive Christian Church, North Pershing dr. and North Highland st., Arlington, sends along an idea which, he says, comes from his laymen. It suggests ways in which stronger urban churches can aid weaker suburban congregations. We quote:

Buckwalter

Egbert

"A downtown church often is surfeited with talent of all kinds in its church school, music department, young people's activities, mission work. Some of the areas where the talent of the large churches might be shared with the smaller ones are the lending of musicians. The small church would especially enjoy an evening of recreation planned by the recreational director of the large church. Sunday school teachers might be exchanged or lent by the big church.



IN BLACK AND WHITE—Merlin A. Rader, Federal Works Agency architect, designed what is regarded as one of the most attractive and informative church bulletin boards in the Greater Washington area. When illuminated, it can be seen for blocks in the Mount Rainier area. The Washington Federation of Churches, in its forthcoming monthly bulletin, will urge churches to "dress up" their bulletin boards to make church premises more attractive. A layman wrote to the federation, deploring the "rundown condition" of church bulletin boards

Here is a place for missionary work among our own people which involves no big safari, no expense, no journeys abroad. It's a bus-fare job, practical, and I think it would pay off."

190 Churches Launch Drive For $53,970

The Washington Federation of Church launched its $53,970 campaign for 1948 at a dinner last night at the Calvary Baptist Church.

Arthur S. Fleming, Civil Service Commissioner and campaign chairman, presided at the dinner attended by more than 225 volunteer workers representing 190 member churches of all local Protestant denominations.

Fleming, confident of reaching the goal, which is almost 20 per cent above last year's, emphasized the importance of the federation's services—services, he said, which "no church could render by itself."

Typical of the federation's city-wide welfare work are the counseling programs conducted by the Rev. Dan Potter at Lorton Reformatory and the Rev. Ernst Bruder at St. Elizabeths Hospital. They are two of the ten full-time staff members of the federation.

Chaplain Bruder, who visited 5470 patients last year, told of a 90-year-old lady who told him soon after her admission to the hospital, "I haven't had a prayer said for me in 20 years—since my son died. People sort of lose sight of you."

Dr. Frederick E. Reissig, executive secretary, said in an address read by Fleming, federation president, that he has "always believed in cooperation among churches."

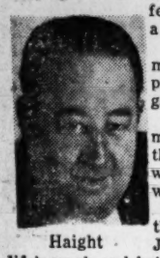
Scraps About Caps

Our Haight Learns About Basketball

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

ITS ONLY NATURAL that Big Joe Holman should be working for an iceman.

Years ago I saw Joe for the first time and he was freezing—freezing a basketball, that is. He was as tall as he is now—some 6 feet, 4—but at that time he built like a slat and not a vat, if you know what I mean.



Haight

I was getting the heavy sports department assignments then although I had not reached by present proportions, and was sent to cover an independent game.

Holman's team made two baskets in the opening minute and then he attempted to freeze the ball for the remainder of the game. He finally got arm weary, but, if memory serves correctly, the final score was something like 12-10.

It was through basketball that Holman came into the writing business. Although a quiet soul, Big Joe has made the beating of publicity drums his life's work and he's better than a greenhandat it, as they say on the backstretch.

He has a variety of accounts but his principal winter job is trying to lure basketball fans for Iceman M. Uline into the arena of the same name, a task incidentally at which his is successful.

Along with Povich, Considine and others I helped Big Joe get a journalistic foothold—a rather absurd way of putting it, inasmuch as Holman walks around in a couple of PT boats.

Like the elephant he is almost as big as, Holman never forgets.

So when he saw in our paper that I was pinch-hitting for vacationing Povich, he decided to give me a break with some information on a certain basketball game to be played tonight.

THE WASHINGTON CAPS, I'm told, are battling the Philadelphia Warriors at Uline's Arena.

Now to you that may meah nothing, but to the basketball fans it's like a pair of atomic bombs nestling up to each other or the irresistible force meeting the immovable object—or something.

Holman phoned that he was "sending up a few pointers on the game."

I wasn't around the office but I'm told Big Joe's "few pointers" arrived in a moving van. I never saw so much data on one subject in by life. If I read through it, I'd probably miss the game. As for printing it, the boss said OK if I would cut down enough trees to make the paper.

But all kidding aside, Holman knows his basketball and his knowledge of the game isn't confined to the Caps and their league.

Here's some Holman pointers:

CAPS BEAT WARRIORS early in season by a rather comfortable score, but were all out to gain a 72-70 decision December 27 . . . Referee-in-Chief Pat Kennedy, who officiated, along with Washington's Phil Fox, said, 'One of the greatest games I've ever worked or witnessed.' . . . Joe Fulks, Warriors' ace, scored 20 points in the first half. The Caps won by holding Fulks to 6 points in the second half while Washington's Freddie Scolari made 18 . . . the Warriors caught up with the Caps at Philadelphia last Friday, 69-60, with Fulks firing 30 points . . . in his three starts against the Caps, Fulks has scored 25, 26 and 30, adding up to 81 points—or an average of 27 per game . . . the last official scoring count shows Fulks with 467 points in 21 games.

The Caps have some better all-around players in Joe's opinion, but as a scorer Fulks stands alone, statistics say . . . Washington's Bob Feerick polled the second high vote to Fulks last year for the association's all-star team . . . comparatively, Feerick resembles baseball's Ty Cobb who did many things well while generally gaining recognition as the greatest ballplayer of all time . . . But Fulks packs the Babe Ruthian punch—the one that makes the turnstiles sizzle and games go the Warrior way.

HOLMAN BELIEVES the Caps are stronger this year than last when they won 49 of 60 games, the difference being that the league is better balanced . . . the acquisition of Sidney Hertzberg, who made the club hit its stride, along with strong reserves, has boosted Caps' stock . . . the team has been aided by George Lentz, trainer of the Nats, who will remain until the baseball players head South . . . Joe doubts if the old-time court stars of the 1920's, when Washington's Palace Club and the New York Celtics were battling, could maintain the present terrific court pace, upped by the elimination of the center jump . . . but he believes the old game was much rougher and that Horse Haggerty and other big boys of their day would have made it miserable for some of the present stars . . . the Warriors' Halbert, 6 feet 9½ inches, would have been even more sensational in the center jump days than now.

Joe maintains that Nat Holman (no relation) would have been a great star in any era of the game, but says the present clubs would play the old Celtics off their feet . . . there was a time when extremely large fellows were considered freaks on the court. However, modern instruction and competition has enabled them to make the most of their height . . . present-day pro basketball's most colorful player is Bones McKinney, a born comedian, who can be dead serious when the chips are down . . . all sections are producing top pro players. The days when a pro club can be invincible like the Original Celtics, with all others also-rans, are gone forever.

Note—I was going to write more, but the boss just called a personal foul on me for delaying the paper.

Mangrum Earns Tie in Crosby Golf

By Russ Newland

Del Monte, Calif., Jan. 9 (AP).—Former United States Open Champion Lloyd Mangrum, one of a handful to conquer the sand-flanked Cypress Point Course today, shared in a three-way lead in the first round of the 54-hole Bing Crosby $10,000 pro-amateur golf tournament.

Mangrum was deadlocked at two-under-par 70 with George Fazio, veteran from Los Angeles, and Bill Fritz, San Franciscan, still serving his apprenticeship in the professional Golfers Association ranks.

Par for Cypress Point is 37-35—72. Mangrum, finishing late in the day, posted 36-34, to hit the eighteenth wire in a dead heat with Fazio, 35-35 and Fritz, early leader at 37-33.

Only two others of the 71 pros in the field, broke par for the course. They were the crack Canadian, Stan Leonard of Vancouver, B. C., and Martin Pose, Buenos Aires, each with 36-35—71.

An equal number of amateurs teamed up with the professionals. Frank Stranahan of Toledo, Ohio, one of the few simon pures who played out every shot in the pro-amateur best ball competition, led his fellows with a 70. He had a 35 for each nine to show a medal score equal to the three professional leaders. There is no special prize for the individual low scoring amateur. Hence, in the best ball team play, practically all of the rest failed to play out holes where their pro partners had the lower score.

First round best ball honors went to the tem of Leonard and T. Suffern Tailer, Phoenix, Ariz., and New York Amateur, with a low of 32-33—65.

Crosby, the tournament host, and his local pro partner, Cam Puget, trailed far back with 32, 36—74.

Behind the subpar shooters in the professional money scramble were two hotshots, Ben Hogan and Sam Snead, tied with Barney Clark, Los Angeles, with opening round par 72s. Hogan, winner of the Los Angeles Open this week, had nines of 38, 34; Snead 35, 47.

Bobby Locke of Johannesburg, South Africa, big money-winner and sensation of last year's summer and fall tournaments in this country, racked up an initial 37, 36—72. Others who shared the bracket were United States Open Titleholder Lew Worsham of Washington, D. C.; Ellsworth Vines, Los Angeles; National PGA Champion Jim Ferrier, San Francisco; 1947 Leading Money Winner Jimmy Demaret, Ojai, Calif., and Vic Ghezzi, Kansas City, Kans.

Carolina Stops V. P. I. Five, 39-31

Blacksburg, Va., Jan. 9 (AP).—Virginia Tech Cagers, making their first appearance against Southern Conference competition, lost to the University of North Carolina in a rough, rugged contest here tonight, 39-31.

The Tar Heels built up a 15-0 lead in the first seven minutes of play as Tech's shifting zone defense went sour. But the Techmen came back to some extent on the shooting of Crennie Reed and closed the gap to 24-15 at halftime.

UP AND IN—Despite the close guarding of Roosevelt's Billy Paugh (42), Wayne Brizendine (36) of Western goes into the air and swishes in a basket in the first half of an Interhigh clash yesterday at the Armory. Others in the picture are Roosevelt's Glenn Johnson (58), Clem Markham (39), of Western, and Bill Hibbs (41) of Roosevelt. Western won, 43-32, to open a 4-game program launching public school action

This Game Was a 'Killer,' No Doubt

Madison, Wis., Jan. 9 (AP).—The Madison Capital Times, in a three-column sports page box, revealed today a bit of personal correspondence of its assistant sports editor, Lew Cornelius.

The box contained a reproduction of a postcard bearing Cornelius' lead on the Wisconsin-Illinois basketball game Saturday night in which he wrote that "over 14,500 fans died a 1000 times" before the Badgers won.

Typed at the bottom was the notation "we should have loved to have been there."

The card was signed by a Madison undertaking firm.

A. U.'s Fugler, Court Captain, Quits Team

Another local college basketball captain turned in his suit yesterday, but this time it was at his own request.

American's Bart Fugler resigned because of a heavy scholastic load. When he found he will have to double up in courses from February on, he decided to forego basketball.

On Thursday, Georgetown's Andy Kostecka was dismissed from the squad after a newspaper story quoted him blasting Coach Elmer Ripley.

Fugler, 24-year-old District resident, was in his sixth year of varsity competition. During the war, he was a regular on the University of Pennsylvania team which won the Eastern Intercollegiate League championship. Later, he played on the Iowa Seahawk team that claimed the service championship.

Fugler was an all-high basketball selection at Woodrow Wilson. Last year, he won the Jack Dempsey award as American University's outstanding athlete.

American U. plays Quantico Marines here tonight. Quantico has a 7-7 record against college teams.

In the other local game tonight, Maryland will try to end a three-game losing streak against a weak Clemson five in a Southern Conference game at 8:30 at College Park.

Georgetown, which finally snapped a seven-game losing streak, journeys to Buffalo to face a strong Canisius five. In other contests, Villanova plays at Navy this afternoon and Gallaudet at Bridgewater tonight.

Gallaudet Wins On Mat, 19-9

Catholic University opened the first wrestling season of its history yesterday with a 19-9 loss to the Gallaudet mattmen. Gallaudet took 7 of the 10 matches, including 2 which were nonscoring exhibitions.

Grid Stars Bill DeYoung and Whitey Hubert gave the Cardinals their only victories in the heavier classes. Gallaudet Heavyweight Ed Holonya decisioned Don Day in the heavyweight bout.

The results:
140-POUND EXHIBITION—Owen Nugent, Gallaudet, pinned Dan Strepeater in 3 min.
175-POUND EXHIBITION—Willard Madsen, Gallaudet, decisioned Tony Zappa.
121-POUND CLASS—Ozel Kirkpatrick, Gallaudet, pinned Whit Gilligan in 2:13 min.

Cece Travis Quietly Ends Baseball Career

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 9.—Cecil Travis has ended his baseball playing days, bowing out after 15 years as a big leaguer almost as quietly as he entered the pro game back in 1930.

Travis, the lanky Riverdale, Ga., boy who went from the Chattanooga Lookouts to the Washington Senators back in 1932, has decided to quit because "he can't stand to stumble around on the field anymore."

The war ended Cecil's big league career, although he won't say so. He was in the Army nearly four years and suffered frozen feet in the front lines in France. He's never been the same since.

I tried for two years to get back to normal," the likeable Georgian said on his farm, 15 miles west of here, Friday.

"I just don't have it anymore and I'm not going to try playing again.

Batting Falls Off

"Before I went into the Army my batting average in the big leagues was around .330. In 1946 it was something like .250, and last year about .215. That was enough for me. I knew I didn't have it and that's why I decided to quit."

Trais says he could draw down a top salary for another two or three years, but he has too much pride to take the money when he can't return value received.

"I asked Mr. Griffith to put me on the voluntary retired list at the end of the last season, and so far I have had nothing to change my mind," he said. "I've always heard it was tough quitting, but I haven't found it so.

Might Try Scouting

"I have a pretty good investment here and I want to stay at home. The only kind of a job I'd be interested in now is a part-time scouting job and I may get that. But I don't even want to scout if it is going to take me away from home too much."

Travis, at 34, said he knew he was finished before anyone else. "I just don't have any more of that thing we call 'cat'", he complained.

"I feel fine, as good as I've ever felt. But I can't react any more and I can't cover any ground."

Cecil said he had a letter from Mr. Griffith about six weeks ago asking him if he'd be interested in managing Charlotte, a Senator FAWU club in the Piedmont League.

"I told him I wasn't interested. If I'm going to keep playing baseball I might as well go on back to the big leagues."

Travis owns a 250-acre farm about 15 miles west of Atlanta but he, his wife and two sons live in the city.

Graziano to Fight Here in March

New York, Jan. 9 (AP).—Rocky Graziano, world's middleweight champion, will meet an ointment yet to be selected in a nontitle bout in Washington "early in March," his manager, Irving Cohen, said today.

Cohen added it would be an overweight match.

Graziano won the world's middleweight crown from Tony Zale last July.

(First announcement that Graziano, under indefinite suspension in New York and barred for life in Illinois and Pennsylvania, was made in The Washington Post five weeks ago.

(The fight here will be staged by the Liberty Athletic Club with the site as yet undetermined. Promoter Goldie Ahearn said he and Cohen would meet soon to select a "suitable opponent.")

More Seats Planned for D. C. Armory

Plans are being made to increase the seating capacity of the National Guard Armory, The Washington Post learned last night.

In answer to a request by members of the Senate and House District Committees, the District of Columbia Commissioners reported that it would cost $340,000 to increase the Armory's seating capacity from its present 4825 to 9775.

Senator Cain and Representative Dirksen, representing the District Committees of the upper and lower houses, requested the information following their inspection of the two-million-dollar edifice in November. The two visited the Armory during the squabble between the Commissioners and the National Guard over who should operate the building.

To Start Legislation

"I hardly think the Senator would request such information unless he planned to ntroduce legislation to increase the seating capacity," an aide to Senator Cain said last night. "I know he feels that it's a shame that a beautiful building like the Armory, with its great potentialties as a civic center, should be limited to its present seating capacity."

In the report to Senator Cain and Representative Dirksen, the Commissioners submitted three sets of plans figures. The first would add 1800 seats at a cost of $65,000. The second would add 2150 seats at a cost of $140,000.

Neither of these plans would require any large-scale changes to the armory, the Commissioners said. However, the report added, if the third plan is adopted—the addition of 4950 seats—major structural changes, including additional fire exits would be required.

No Immediate Action

The report further recommended that no immediate action be taken until another study of the situation can be made. Next month Congress is expected to settle the dispute between the Commissioners and the National Guard as to which shall operate the armory.

Under present arrangements, the National Guard operates the building, but all revenues collected from activities other than strictly Guard functions are placed in a special fund pending Congress' rulings.

District fire inspectors limited the seating capacity when the armory was made available for public use, claiming there are not a sufficient number of exits to accommodate larger crowds.

Harlow Quits As Harvard Grid Coach

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 9 (AP).—The poor health which led to Richard Cresson (Dick) Harlow's retirement from the Navy in 1945 today forced him to resign as football coach at Harvard where spokesmen said no immediate attempt would be made to select a new gridiron mentor.

Harlow's decision, made after a checkup at Duke University Hospital with his personal physician, was announced through William J. Bingham, director of athletics who is attending the annual National Collegiate Athletic Association meeting in New York.

The university will delay its choice of a successor to the Westminster, Md., zoologist whose over-all Harvard record in 11 years shows 45 victories, 39 losses and seven ties.

Harlow, 57, a past president of the American Football Coaches Association, came to Harvard in 1935 from Western Maryland where he had served nine years as coach and athletic director.

PRIOR to coaching at Western Maryland, where he achieved prominence, Harlow had been football coach at Penn State, his alma mater, from 1912 through 1921, and at Colgate from 1922 through 1926.

Harlow recounted, through Harvard spokesmen, that he has been on a rice and fruit juice diet "for a long time and can't even drink water" in an effort to overcome hypertension and high blood pressure.

University sources said that Harlow will "rest completely for at least two months and later on might do some scouting or act as part time adviser for a young football coach."

No mention was made of Harlow's berth as curator of zoology at the Harvard Museum of Comparative Zoology. A former Penn State football and baseball player, track man and boxer, Harlow's hobby is ornithology and he is a distinguished botanist.

Magerkurth Quits as Ump

New York, Jan. 9 (AP).—President Ford Frick of the National Baseball League said tonight that he had received the resignation of George Magerkurth, veteran umpire who has "called 'em" in the senior circuit for 19 years.

"We have accepted the resignation with a lot of regret," Frick said, adding that Magerkurth injured a knee last summer and felt he no longer could handle the assignment.

Magerkurth, one of baseball's colorful arbiters lives in Moline, Ill.

Grid Cards Sign Appalachian Back

Chicago, Jan. 9 (AP).—John Hollar, halfback from the Appalachian State Teachers College at Boone, N. C., has signed a contract with the Chicago Cardinals, champions of the National Football League, Ray C. Benningsen, club president, announced tonight.

Hollar, first new player to be signed by the Cards for 1948, was the club's fifth choice in the recent player draft.

Colonials Annex 11th Win of '47-'48

George Washington University basketeers chalked up their eleventh triumph in 12 games this season, and their seventh triumph in eight Southern Conference outings, last night as they turned back Clemson, 79-67, at Tech High gym.

A crowd of about 2000 saw the hot Colonials have a surprisingly tough time with the Tigers. Earlier they had marked up a 60-35 triumph over the same team; last night they were never safely ahead.

In losing its sixth straight game in as many starts this season, Clemson trailed by only 32-27 at the half.

Capt. Bill Cantwell paced the Colonials with 19 points and Maynard Haithcock and Phil McNiff provided most of the scoring help with 15 and 11 points, respectively.

W. A. Holshouser, Clemson center, led the losers with 17 points, and one field goal behind was Lenny Riddle.

Reds' Liscombe Defeats Lions

Two of the stocky scoring star's goals came in the final period of the rough game, which saw 12 penalties handed out and intermittent fights taking place throughout.

Caps May Set Attendance Mark

A paid attendance record for basketball is anticipated at Uline Arena tonight when Joe Fulks and the Philadelphia Warriors make their last scheduled appearance in a Basketball Association of America game here against the Capitols at 8:30 o'clock.

Arrangements have been completed to accommodate more than 7000 persons. An attendance mark was set last season when 5500 saw the Caps and New York Knickerbockers here.

Fulks, with 467 points in his first 21 games, will be a marked man tonight. The 6-foot, 5-inch Kentuckian has registered 81 points in his last three starts against Washington.

He set a 30-point pace in Philadelphia's Convention Hall a week ago as the Warriors won their first game in their last eight starts against the Capitols, 69-30.

The Caps not only will be out to halt Fulks, but also to check six foot, nine and one-half inch Chick Halbert and six foot, four Howie Dallmar, who control rebounds off both baskets, and George Senesky, Jerry Fleishman and Angelo Musi, who direct the Warriors' floor game.

Capt. Bob Feerick, who scored 318 points in 21 starts to date, will be Washington's big threat and will be supported by Freddie Scolari, McKinney, Torgoff, Mahnken, "Sonny" Hertzberg, John Norlander, Dick O'Keefe and Jack Tingle, all of whom are expected to play.

At 7:15, Kenny and Jimmy Fulks, who hail from the same section of western Kentucky that produced Joe Fulks and who believe they are distant cousins of the scoring king, will represent Trinidad Boys Club 90-pounders against the Georgetown Boys Club.

Dear Folks: At Gulfstream

Breeding in Maryland and racing in general got a big boost when Henry L. Straus, the "tote" chieftain, disclosed he had purchased a 900-acre farm in Worthington Valley near Alfred G. Vanderbilt's Sagamore Farm. Straus, who is a director of the Maryland Jockey Club (operators of Pimlico and Laurel), will have the stallions Quarter Moon and New Moon. Both carried his colors in the East and are well-known to Maryland fans. Quarter Moon won 21 races during his career and holds a decision over the mighty Armed. New Moon has turned in earnings of $128,000. Straus' land is part of Snow Hill Farm where the Maryland Hunt Cup is run. He plans an extensive horse-breeding program. Remember Jimmy Butwell, the jockey? He's now mail clerk and handy man of the racing secretary's office at Gulfstream. He made his saddle debut in 1910. He rode many star horses during his career and says he must have taken off a ton during 23 years as a rider. He says he can hardly remember a morning when he didn't jog 3 miles wrapped in rubber bandages and heavy sweat suits, stewing off the excess poundage. Most weight-fighting jockeys can't take that punishment very long. e says Roamer was the greatest horse he ever rode, but "I certainly got tired of chasing Man o' War."

Coolidge Loses 1st Night Game

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

The hustling Eastern Ramblers spoiled Calvin Coolidge's opening defense of the interhigh basketball championship last night by walloping the Colts, 39-22, before 3000 spectators at the National Guard Armory.

In the afternoon twin bill, Western defeated Roosevelt, 43-32, and Wilson squeezed past Central, 30-28 ,before a crowd of 1896.

Eastern took a 12-5 lead at the end of the first quarter and hedld the advantage the rest of the way. Halftime Eastern lead was, 16-12, and going into the final quarter, the Ramblers were on top ,27,17.

Scoring Divided

Scoring for Eastern was fairly well divided, Joe Graves taking high point honors with 9. Spike Barouth and Sal Degiorgi were outstanding for the winners in their general floor play.

Coolidge was hampered by the fact that its two best shots, Tommy Boyles and Jess Houston drew four fouls during the first half, and had to be used sparingly afterward.

In the first game of the day, the Raiders overcame an 18-15 halftime deficit to defeat Roosevelt's Rough Riders. In the nightcap, Don Snider's one-handed field goal with one second remaining gave the Green Tigers a 30-28 triumph over Central's Vikings.

Like Western, Wilson went into the second half trailing, 18-15. However, the Tigers overtook the Vikings to lead, 23-21, going into the last quarter.

It was nip and tuck in the final period, and with three minutes left the score was deadlocked at 26-all.

Wilson's Jack Whitcomb then sank two foul shots which were matched by Central's Hal Sponsler on a layup. Then, just before the game's end, Snider took a pass from Dick Janigan, and let fly a one-hander at the foul line which swished through the net and Wilson had won.

With Pat O'Neill, league's leading scorer last season, still out of the line-up with a leg injury suffered during football season, the Tigers had to rely on Whitcomb to fill the gap. Whitcomb came through with 11 points.

What Am I Saying! — By Frank Morgan

No horse can go as fast as the money you bet on him.

Both Sides Lay Claim To Gains in GSI Dispute

White House Gives No Hint of Action On Fifth Day of Cafeteria Dispute

Both management and union claimed their positions were bettered yesterday in the fifth day of the strike at Government Services-operated cafeterias here.

While the union, United Cafeteria and Restaurant Workers Local 471 (UPWA-CIO), looked hopefully for White House intervention, there was no hint of immediate executive action.

Service at the 40 GSI cafeterias in operation is "going along wonderfully," said J. C. Niehuss, GSI personnel director.

GSI had 1100 persons at work yesterday, exclusive of supervisory personnel, and served about 67,000 meals, as compared with a pre-strike average of 80,000 meals a day, he said.

Hiring Slows Down

Niehuss stated that inasmuch as cafeterias are closed at the Supreme Court and the Labor Department, "we're operating very close to normal."

While GSI had about 1500 employes before the strike, hiring of replacement workers, except cooks and bakers, has "slowed almost to a halt, because we're being very selective and have almost all the help we need."

Today and tomorrow, he said, with Government offices closed, only the cafeterias at the National Gallery of Art and Arlington Farms will operate.

Yesterday was "a bright day" for the union, declared Oliver Palmer, business agent of Local 471.

"We had a stream of strike-breakers coming in her to sign up with the union when they found what the real issues were," he declared.

By mid-day, he said, 30 of the replacement workers hired by GSI had signed up to join the strike," and we even had two or three of our former members, who were 'hoodwinked' into working for GSI, rejoin us."

Earlier yesterday, Niehuss issued a statement criticizing the efforts of CIO President Philip Murray to obtain White House intervention in the dispute.

Sees 'Strange Bedfellows'

"He may find he has chosen strange bedfellows by inserting himself so strongly in this dispute after three top Government agencies have refused to intervene," said Niehuss.

"The CIO head is asking the President to intervene on behalf of a union claiming to represent GSI personnel working in Federal Buildings when the union officials have refused to file non-Communist affidavits."

"Does he not realize that the entire Government is requiring loyalty statements from its employes?"

A pledge of support for the strikers came yesterday from the District branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

The statement said, in part: "We, the representatives of over 10,000 citizens of the District of Columbia . . . urge you (GSI) to recognize the basic good intentions of Local 471 and begin negotiations with it toward the amicable settlement of the present strike."

Lawrence Kammett, UPWA public relations director, said a special prayer meeting for the strikers and their families will be held at 3:30 p. m. tomorrow at Shiloh Baptist Church, 9th and P sts. nw.

President Praises the USO . . .

Harris & Ewing

A JOB WELL DONE, SAYS MR. TRUMAN—Dr. Lindsley F. Kimball (right), of New York City, president of the USO, is congratulated by President Truman for the work done by the organization. Miss Mary G. Hawks (center), also of New York City, a member of the Board of Directors, and other USO officials were on hand yesterday for the ceremony at the White House

President Truman yesterday awarded the United Service Organizations (USO) an "honorable discharge," but told it to be "on call in case an emergency develops."

The President, in an off-the-cuff speech to the USO's directors at the White House, praised the organization's work as "one of the successful accomplishments of the war" and a "job to which we can point with pride."

"If I have anything to say about it," Mr. Truman said, "you can have your discharge, but always with the idea that you are on call in case an emergency develops which will make it necessary for you to revive the organization which you are now disbanding."

Doors of USOs throughout the country were closed on the last day of 1947 following seven years service to the United States armed forces and their allies.

President Truman said he had visited USOs in this country and abroad and that he was very appreciative of the work they have done.

"I can't say enough and I can't give you in words how thankful I am," he said. "All I can say is, in the name of the United States of America, thank you for a job well done."

In a final business session preceding the noontime White House ceremonies, USO President Dr. Lindsley F. Kimball announced that a total of $236,721,295 was contributed for its activities from its inception in February, 1941, through last week.

D. C. Area Contributions

Of that amount, the District gave $2,182,369, or .92 per cent of the total. Maryland gave $3,651,992 (1.54 per cent) and Virginia contributed $3,597,794 (1.52 per cent.)

Dr. Kimball also disclosed that the USO has appropriated $2,500,000 from funds available at the end of 1947 for agencies to operate clubs near military or naval bases and hospitals, and another one million dollars for continuing shows in veterans hospitals.

He described the organization as "both a symbol of a Nation's care for its sons and daughters in uniform and a principal channel for an unprecedented civilian participation in effort."

Judge Acts In Theft of Kin's Suits

Prisoner Sentenced In County Court; Four Men's Terms More Than Decade

Four men drew sentences totaling 10 years and 8 months in Montgomery County yesterday, one of them for stealing clothing that included two suits belonging to the presiding judge's brother.

Sentenced by Judge Stedman Prescott in the Montgomery County Circuit Court were:

Okey C. Patton, 38, 2137 G st. nw., charged with unnatural and perverted sex practices, was ordered confined in the Maryland House of Correction for three years and eight months.

Norvelle L. Simpson, 35, formerly of 1313 T st. nw., who was charged with housebreaking and larceny, received a jail term of two years and six months.

Simpson was convicted by a jury of stealing several items from a cleaning establishment. The items included two suits, the property of William H. Prescott, brother of Judge Prescott.

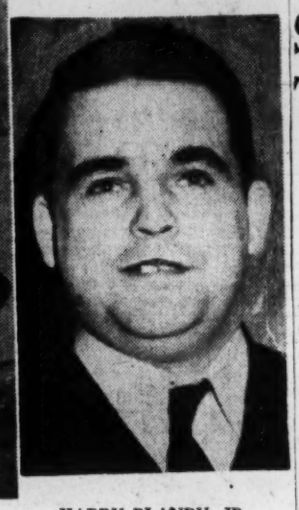
The jurist emphasized his close relationship with the victim "makes no difference." Simpson had previously served a six-year jail term for larceny.

Joseph Wells, 36, 1523 Church st. nw., was given a sentence of two years and six months in jail for housebreaking and larceny.

William E. Bishop, 24, Brighton, Md., was sentenced to two years in jail. He was convicted of breaking into the home of Mr. and Mrs. P. G. Ligon, at Brighton, and stealing two wallets containing $53.

Trial Board Fines Policeman, Orders Other to Pay $372 Debt

ELLSWORTH WILLIAMS
Attorney covers him up



HARRY BLANDY, JR.
At Trial Board hearing

Police Pvt. Harry H. Blandy, jr., of the First Precinct was found guilty of failing to patrol his beat and fined $25 by the Police Trial Board yesterday.

The board also ordered Pvt. Ellsworth Williams of the Eleventh Precinct to pay off a $372 debt at the rate of $25 each payday—under pentlay of dismissal from the force if he fails.

Pleading not guilty, Blandy testified he was not asleep on his beat at 6:25 a. m. on December 12, when Sergt. Daniel Fletcher found him sitting with his feet on the desk of a garage oceffi, his eyes closed.

Leg Trouble Claimed

His legs were bothering him, he told the board, because of varicose veins, and he put his feet on the desk to relieve his legs. He testified that his leg condition was noted on his Navy record and that he had been to the police surgeon about it. The surgeon in December had suggested an operation, he said, but it had been put off until after the holidays.

Records showed Blandy had made his hourly calls, one of them at 6:08 a. m., and he said he had been in the garage about 5 minutes when Sergt. Fletcher appeared. Fletcher testified he did not know whether or not Blandy was asleep when he found him in the garage, which is at 24 H st. ne. and on Blandy's beat. It is open 24 hours a day, he said.

Blandy, 27, joined the police force on September 7, 1942, and resumed his service June 3, 1946, after 22 months in the Navy.

Blames Son's Expenses

Private Williams, who is 53 and a widower, said he fell behind in his payments on a $500 note he signed in June, 1943, because of expenses for his son, who is attending Howard University. Testimony showed he had made a number of small payments totaling $128, the most recent one last Thursday.

Complainant in the case was Milton Mendell, attorney for Benjamin Kraft, clothing merchant and real estate broker at 712 H st. ne., who purchased Williams' note for $400, he testified. It was originally made out to Robert W. McCullough, attorney, to cover payments made by him on a mortgage on a piece of Virginia property of Williams, and McCullough's fee for representing Williams on a previous loan payment case before the Trial Board.

Williams' pay check, which he receives twice a month, amounts to $120 after deductions, he said.

Area Butter Price Cuts Seen Likely To Continue

Chain Spokesman Says Reductions May Herald General Decline Next Week

Steadily falling wholesale butter prices on the New York and Chicago markets this past week are being translated by at least some retailers here into lower prices, it was indicated yesterday.

Price reductions in butter will not be uniform or occur simultaneously, dealers said, since effect of the market decline is not felt by all distributors at the same time or to the same degree.

One dairy cut the price of its butter 2 cents Thursday. An independent grocery in Northwest Washington reduced the price of its best butter 4 cents and roll butter 3 cents yesterday. Another dairy is cutting the price 6 cents Monday.

A chain store spokesman said lowered prices would probably be more general the first part of the week.

A similar situation prevailed on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange. Drops of 3½ to 5¼ cents a pound, amounting to 4½ to 10½ cents a pound from Monday prices, were recorded.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics reported yesterday that costs of living for moderate-incom families in Washington reached an all-time high in mid-November.

The Washington consumers5 price index rose 1.6 per cent between August 15 and November 15 to reach a new all-time high of 161.7 per cent of the 1935-39 average, the bureau's report on the three-month period said.

The Washington rise paralleled the national situation. Retail prices for the country advanced 0.7 per cent, advancing the consumers' price index for November to 164.9 per cent.

The November index nationally was 8.3 per cent higher than a year ago. In Washington it was 7.6 per cent higher.

Police Chief Faces 2 New Complaints

Greenbelt Executive Denies Both Charges By Probe Committee

Two new complaints alleging neglect of duty by Greenbelt Police Chief George Panagoulis were aired last night by a committee investigating the town's administration.

Panagoulis, who denied both charges, was accused of marking himself on duty last year at a time when he was snowbound at Cedar Point, Md., and also of refusing to accompany a town policeman on an emergency call.

Former Policeman Robert Dodge said Panagoulis, who was acting as town manager at the time, went to Cedar Point on February 20 last year, became snowbound, and did not return to duty until late the following day. He claimed that during the chief's absence there was no one with authority to put snow clearing equipment into operation.

Panagoulis admitted making the trip to Cedar Point and produced personnel records to show that he had applied for and had been granted four hours' leave beginning at noon that day. He said he was unaware of the impending snow storm when he left and had intended to be back in the town by 6 p. m.

Elliott Sines, superintendent of public works, testified in support of Panagoulis that he had always been directed to put snow plows into operation at his own discretion. He added there was no delay in clearing the town streets on that particular day.

Last night's session concluded hearing of charges against Panagoulis, who was named as defendant in 14 separate complaints. The committee still has to hear additional evidence on charges against Town Manager James T. Gobbel, accused of mismanaging the town's finances.

In U. S. Court

Va. Girl, 16, Faces Charge Of Robbery

A 16-year-old girl was turned over to District Court on robbery charges yesterday by Juvenile Court.

The girl, from Petersburg, Va., gave her age at one time as 18 and on another occasion as 19, but authorities found her birth records showed she was slightly over 16. Juvenile Court Judge Fay Bentley explained that she had waived jurisdiction in the case because the girl had no relatives in the District with whom the court could work to rehabilitate the girl.

The judge added that "this does not necessarily happen in every case where there is an out-of-town juvenile involved." "Every case is considered on its own merit," the judge said.

A companion, arrested with the girl in connection with the robbery of a soldier whom the girl said she brought to their room here because "he was drunk and helpless," has been sentenced to six months for petty larceny. He is Jacob Merritt, 24, also of Petersburg.

A court appointed attorney succeeded in having a robbery charge reduced to petty larceny when it was learned that the robbed soldier was not certain as to how much money he lost. He at first claimed $170 and a watch were taken from him. The watch was recovered in Petersburg.

Merritt pleaded guilty to the petty larceny charge. Then it was learned the girl was only 16 and Municipal Court Judge Armond Scott turned her over to juvenile court.

The original charge of robbery was placed against the girl again when she was turned over to the jurisdiction of the District Court. "When a juvenile over 16 commits an offense, which if it had been committed by an adult would amount to a felony, then the juvenile comes within the jurisdiction of the District Court," Judge Bentley said.

Appearing before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage yesterday, she was held under a $1000 bond for action of the District Court.

Morningside Veterans Face Fuel Shortage

Many Families Have But 2-Day Supply, Others 'Very Short'

Families of veterans in the 400-home Morningside Village Housing Development in nearby Prince Georges County may be entirely without fuel oil within a few days tained.

Officials of the Morningside Village Citizens Association disclosed yesterday that about 100 homes will be out of fuel oil today and the other 300 are facing a "critical" shortage.

The veterans plight prompted Representative Landsdown G. Sasscer (D., Md.) to appeal to President Truman and six Government agencies for help.

50 Areas Have Shortage

Sasscer said there was an oil shhortage in 50 or 60 nearby Maryland communities.

Mrs. John L. Galloway, secretary of the Moringside Association said the area generally is suffering because it is made up of new homese and fhel oil dealers are taking care of old customers first. She said the shortage has existed since aboht a week ago when residents were informed by dealers there would be no more deliveries for an indefinite period.

The most critical situation confronts about 100 families who are served by a dealer in business for only a few months. Because he had no previous quotas he has been unable to obtain oil from the major companies.

Get Two-Day Supply

Mrs. Galloway said the dealer succeeded in getting 1000 gallons Thursday but this enabled him to distribute only 10 gallons to each family. This in the average home is about a two-day supply.

Manuscript Found Is Believed Last Beethoven Work

Baltimore, Jan. 9 (AP).—The original manuscript of what is believed to be the last completed work of Composer Ludwig von Beethoven has been unearthed at the Peabody Conservatory of Music, officials of the institution said today.

The manuscript was found amid modern books and magazines in a library. Peabody officials said they were unaware it was in their possession.

The work is a canon, a composition haveing "voices" or "parts" with the same melody sung in harmonious succession. The words and music are in Beethoven's handwriting.

Beethoven sent the composition to a friend along with the last movement of his B-flat quartet.

10% Rise Attacked

Rent Boosts Requested in 4 Apartments

Requests for rent increases at three apartments on Connecticut and Cathedral aves. nw. and one at 1610 16th st. nw. were heard by District Rent Control officials yesterday.

Kennedy Bros. Co., owners of 168 apartment units at 2301 and 2331 Cathedral ave. and 2901 Connecticut ave. asked the board for boosts of about 10 per cent on apartments ranging in rental from $37.50 to $135.00.

Individual tenants appeared to protest the rent hikes. Requests for increases were based on increased operating costs and taxes. Rent Control Examiner William H. Clarke took the case under advisement.

Examiner James G. Tyson heard tenants of an apartment at 1610 16th st. protest an average 15-percent increase asked by Mrs. Elizabeth Y. Wolf, owner of the property.

Rental on the 58 units runs from $42.50 to $100. Tenants charged that no improvements had been made in their apartments. Tyson took the case under advisement.

3 Arlington Delegates Plan Tax-Boost Plea

Increased taxes but NO sales tax are favored by the Arlington County delegation to the General Assembly.

The three-man delegation announced a program for higher State taxes and new county levies yesterday and said they would sponsor it when the Assembly convenes at Richmond Wednesday.

At the same time, the three will seek county participation in a multi-million dollar, State-wide hospital construction program.

House of Delegates Members J. Maynard Magruder and George Damm and State Senator Charles R. Fenwick said they oppose a sales tax.

To produce the 60 million dollars asked by Virginia department heads over 1946 appropriations, the three delegates will recommend:

(1) An increased income tax on upper brackets, (2) increase in corporate income taxes, (3) a hike in the merchants' retail license tax, (4) increase in the gross receipts tax for public service corporations and (5) establishment of a cigarette tax.

Delegates will ask for legislation authorizing county boards to appropriate funds to aid in the State-wide hospital construction program.

To provide Arlington County itself with additional revenue the delegates will seek legislation empowering the county board to levy license taxes on professions, business concerns, and utilities.

These taxes now may be levied only by Virginia cities.

Also sought will be additional Arlington County revenue from gasoline tax. Delegates pointed out that present distribution of the tax is based on the 1929 census and they will seek an amendment to use the latest census.

The trio will seek to change the time of school board elections from November to "sometime in June," to remove school elections from partisan influence, they said.

A constitutional amendment to permit Government employes to serve as election judges and registrars also will be sought.

The three would increase the salary of the secretary of the electoral board, and authorize appointment of one or more substitutes for the central registrar.

Lack of Loyalty Stirs Veterans, AP Writer Says

Lynchburg, Va., Jan. 9 (AP).—Hal Boyle, columnist of the Associated Press, said today he believed the veterans of the recent conflict were disappointed by the lack of loyalty displayed in groups and organizations.

Boyle, who spoke to the luncheon session of the Virginia Press Association's midwinter meeting here, said he believed the veterans felt the lack of loyalty even more pointedly contrasted to the intense loyalties displayed during the actual fighting.

Earlier, the columnist said in an interview that "We won the European war not with our brains but with our muscles" and the time has now come for the United States to line up its brains rather than its men.

Richmond, Va., Jan. 9 (AP).—Insurance companies told the State Corporation Commission today that too many old cars are being smashed up on Virginia highways.

William D. Hall of New York, actuary for the National Automobile Underwriters Association, said existing rates, even though they average 71 per cent higher than rates of 1941, are inadequate.

The commission brought out questions to show that a substantial part of the companies' request for a rate increase is based on "informed judgment," rather than on accounting and statistical data and continued the hearing.

Area News in Brief

Dog Rewards Girls For Canine Rescues

Appreciation to two girls who rescued two dogs from a culvert Thanksgiving day was expressed yesterday by a representative of dogdom.

The representative, Caesar, a former resident of the Animal Rescue League, 71 O st. nw., is a 7-year-old Great Dane, owned by Miss Katrina Himes of the Westchester Apartments.

At league headquarters Caesar appreciatively "gave" a book each to Joan Ruth Barrett, 10, of 710 Hamlin st. ne., and Carroll Beach, 11, of 716 Hamlin st.

The two girls, both "Trailseekers" in the Campfire Girls, were trailseeking near Soldiers' Home when they discovered a terrier and one of her puppies trapped in a culvert. The dogs had been there about four days, the girls believed. Taking the puppy home, they called the Animal Rescue League, which rescued the mother.

Both dogs later died of exposure, but Caesar and the rescue league knew it wasn't Joan and Carroll's fault.

The books that Caesar "presented" were animal stories, appropriately enough.

Monroe Held for Jury

Edward T. Monroe, 38, 730 N. Columbus st., Alexandria, was held for the grand jury yesterday in Alexandria Civil and Police Court after waiving preliminary hearing on a housebreaking charge.

C. L. Blanton, Mo. 'Polecat' Editor, Dies

Sikeston, Mo., Jan. 9 (U.P.).—Charles L. Blanton, 84, "polecat editor" of the Sikeston Standard, died last night of a heart ailment.

Blanton's death closed one of the most colorful careers in weekly newspaper journalism. He was famous for violent likes and dislikes, for sudden changes of opinion.

Once he was awarded an honorary colonel's commission by Gov. Lloyd C. Stark. Shortly afterward, the two had a falling out, and thereafter the Standard carefully omitted the capital letters whenever it mentioned Stark's name.

"I ask no one to agree with me and don't care whether they do or not," Blanton said.

Before entering the news field, Blanton worked in Washington for 20 years. He was with the Government Printing Office for four years and then spent 16 years with the Treasury Department. He bought the Standard in 1913.

The title of "polecat editor" was conferred on him by a rival Sikeston editor, Clint H. Denman of the Herald, who was as strongly Republican as Blanton was Democratic.

Denman used the term in an editorial. Next day Blanton ran a big cartoon showing what the polecat editor looked like. Blanton then used the title to refer to himself. His editorials frequently attracted Nation-wide interest.

He is survived by his widow and five children.

Secretary Anderson Visits X-Ray Unit as 'Customer'

Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson had his chest X-rayed yesterday at the new District downtown clinic.

The process took only a few seconds, but for the former Congressman from New Mexico the brief interruption in his busy day was an important act, which he well appreciates.

The photograph will let him know how his lungs are getting along. In 1917 Anderson was turned down by the Army when it was discovered he was suffering from tuberculosis in an acute stage. He spent the next eight years—including eight months flat on his back in bed—curing the disease. He has been taking an annual X-ray checkup ever since.

"The point I want to emphasize," the Agriculture Secretary said, "is that all my suffering could have been averted if I had had my chest X-rayed early in life and had taken the simple curative steps available in the early stage of tuverculosis."

The Washington Chest X-Ray Survey, which hopes to X-ray 600,000 Washingtonians in the next 15 months, will begin Monday, when mobile units go into operation throughout the city. The survey center, in a wing of the Veterans Center, 14th st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw., will open 10 a. m. to 6 p. m. seven days a week.

The X-rays are free. All persons X-rayed will be notified by mail as to results. A second and larger X-ray will be made of those persons showing scars of former TB attack or shadows of active tuberculosis. All reports are strictly confidential.

Secretary Anderson, after having his chest X-rayed yesterday, said that the X-ray survey was the "logical way to find hidden cases" of TB.

"The TB victim is in bad shape when he first learns about having the disease through coughing up sputum or hemmorhages," Anderson pointed out.

Michelson's Funeral Rites Set Tomorrow

Funeral services for Charles Michelson, 79, former director of publicity for the Democratic National Committee, will be held at 11 a. m. tomorrow at Gawler's funeral home, 1756 Pennsylvania ave. nw.

Services will be conducted by Canon Merritt F. Williams of Washington Cathedral, who was chaplain on the aircraft carrier Wasp. There will be no pall bearers. The body will be cremated privately at Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Mr. Michelson died Thursday at his home in the Westchester Apartments following an extended illness.

Eulogized By McGrath

Senator J. Howard McGrath, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, yesterday issued the following statement following the news of the veteran newspaperman's death:

"I am deeply grieved at the death of Charlie Michelson. A newspaperman's newsman, he was also a politician without peer. As a publicist he had no match.

"Charlie Mike was his name to all of us and it seems incredible that he is gone. I suppose it should not come as too great a surprise. Only a few days before Christmas he visited the Democratic National Committee office and all of us were shocked by the change in the man who had always been a dynamo. He was advisor to all of us to the end.

"The party will miss him. His friends will miss him more. Most of all the common folk of the Nation, whose cause Cherley Mike championed at all times, will, perhaps unknowingly, miss him most of all.

Press Club Committee

Warren B. Francis, president of the National Press Club, of which Mr. Michelson was a nonactive member, appointed the following committee to represent the club at the funeral:

Invalid Son to Get $2000 Annual Income

An invalid son of Charles Michelson will receive an annual income of $2000, according to terms of Mr. Michelson's will filed in District Court yesterday.

Full extent of the estate will not be made known until a petition for probate is filed later.

The son, Benjamin Charles Michelson, is confined to an institution. Should he recover, the will stipulates the entire net income of the estate will go to him.

Until then the estate is to be held in trust by the American Security & Trust Co., and from the income of the holdings, the funds will be drawn for Benjamin Michelson's care.

Should the latter leave children, the income will revert to them. If he dies childless, the entire estate is to be divided among Michelson's nieces and nephews.

Minor bequests included $750 to Mrs. James H. Frailey of 4704 Hollywood rd., Berwyn, Md.; $750 to William N. Janson, 4036 25th st., N. Arlington, Va., and $1000 to Mrs. T. Alan Goldsborough, wife of the District Court associate justice.

PEACE IS OUR RESPONSIBILITY

We want to live at peace. We want to raise our children and see them raise their children unmolested. We were born during one world war and have lived through another. That is enough.

Our Secretary of State has come home to report that he cannot make peace for us.

The United Nations has not yet come up with anything that looks like peace.

Generals, and Foreign Ministers, and leagues and unions and federations of soverign states, have not assured us what we want . . . and they have certainly had plenty of time to show what they can do.

It seems clear that folding our hands in prayer, or exercising our rights at the polls, or leaving the job to our One Worlders, will not suffice . . . at least not soon enough.

So what is left? Ourselves.

We know, for ourselves, that we are ready to live at peace. We are ready to give first allegiance to our fellow men in the world community, ready to renounce our share of "soverign prerogatives" for the universal right to live and let live.

We want nothing that can be won for us by pushing others around, and we hold to nothing that invites others to push us around.

We know we can live among our fellows by common rules—with perhaps a few policemen on the job in case we waver—because we have done so all our lives. We know we could work out a pretty good basic set of rules to live by; we don't need ponderous constitutions or the solemn compacts of High Contracting Parties; any one of us could do better for the world community than has been done that way.

Knowing these things, what should we do? If peace—real peace—is not to be made for us, perhaps we can make our own, man to man, with every human being who will share it. We can assume direct, personal responsibility for ourselves. We can speak quietly with our own voices, to say what has never yet been said clearly by those who speak for us.

Standing alone we shall have little effect on the course of great affairs. But perhaps we are not alone. If we, who are followers, touch common ground where we can stand together—or find that we stand already on common ground—we shall have won more for ourselves than our leaders promise us in all the years ahead.

At least to try seems worth the effort.

We are leaving our community in a few weeks to go about the world talking with human beings. We are going to ask them where they stand, to learn if we are indeed alone or in the company of numbers.

And before we set out we would like to talk with you.

We will be at home one mile beyond Wheaton on U. S. Route 97 out of Silver Spring, on Sundays from 10 a. m. until midnight, and at 2008 Q Street N.W., in Washington, on Wednesdays from noon until 10 p. m.

Please come and see us.

J. C. and R. G. King.

MISS MARGARET TRUMAN, as she posed before her portrait yesterday for members of the press. The painting was done in oils by Greta Kempton of New York, at left, and shows Margaret in the gown she wore for her concert in the Hollywood Bowl. The President and Mrs. Truman viewed the painting for the first time on Thursday. It will be hung in the White House

Miss Truman Poses in Concert Frock

By Elizabeth Maguire

A NEW portrait of Margaret Truman was viewed by the press yesterday morning in the Shoreham suite of the artist, Greta Kempton. The blonde subject was there in person, smartly dressed in black suit with Scotch plaid lapels and a little beret on her head.

In the portrait Margaret wears bouffant white slipper satin—the concert costume in which she made her debut at the Hollywood Bowl. A musical background includes the Steinway from the East Room of the White House and the brocade walls of the Green Room. Margaret's right arm rests on the piano, and on her left swings a satin muff edged in black lace.

The artist quoted the President. "I just love it," he said, when he saw the portrait for the first time Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Truman, who accompanied him, commented, "Of course, it's excellent." And Margaret's grandmother, Mrs. D. W. Wallace, was heard to remark, "Oh those dimples, they're so like Margaret."

Just completed, the painting will be moved to the White House soon. Where it will hang has not been decided. A portrait of the President by the same artist hangs in the hall upstairs. Miss Truman's portrait belongs to her family, and will eventually go to Independence.

Miss Kempton, whose married name is Mrs. A. M. McNamara, has also painted the Secretary of the Treasury and his daughter, Miss Drucie Snyder. Mrs. Snyder accompanied the President and Mrs. Truman when they viewed Margaret's portrait, and in the evening the Secretary of the Treasury dropped by.

In answering questions about her career, Miss Truman said that Mrs. T. J. Strickler, her teacher, is on vacation in Missouri, and that she practices daily alone. The young artist has no immediate plans. When one reporter suggested she sing at the Democratic Convention next summer, she laughingly replied, "That's just the time outdoor concerts begin, and it might conflict."

In the general round of conversation, Feller's name inevitably came up. Margaret said that she had seen the little dog only once, that Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Wallace H. Graham are raising him. Margaret explained she is away too much to undertake the problem, and that Mrs. Truman has taken her stand, declaring "I will not raise that dog."

Little Mike, Feller's predecessor, lasted at the White House but a short time. He tore around the East lawn, exhausting himself and everyone else, and in the end was shipped out to Missouri, to someone who understood bird dogs.

Miss Kempton's portrait was started last spring and took just five sittings, but because of Margaret's frequent absence, its completion was delayed. The sittings never took more than two hours, and were very painless, Miss Truman declared.

It was learned that a charcoal sketch of Mrs. Truman by Fern Hope was presented by the President to his daughter for Christmas.

Oxford Debating Team Trio Will Be Feted on Visit Here

Members of the Oxford University debating team, which arrived in Washington this morning to meet the American University team Monday night at the United States Chamber of Commerce auditorium, have a busy weekend ahead of them.

The three members, Sir Edward C. Boyle, the Hon. Anthony Neil Benn and David Harris, will be guests of honor at a luncheon today at the University Club, given by American University. After a sightseeing tour this afternoon, they will be guests at a buffet supper given by Mr. and Mrs. Norman Littell at their home in Arlington.

At 7:30 this evening the visitors will appear on a DuMont television program and at 9 o'clock will be honored at a reception at the Washington Club, when hosts will be students of the American University Speech Club, and members of the English Speaking Union.

Sunday night the Britishers will be guests of honor at a buffet supper given by Harry Stone, a former Oxford classmate, and Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Booth Lowery. Monday noon they will be entertained at the British Embassy.

Lord Inverchapel, British Ambassador, will be chairman of the debate on Monday night, and will be introduced by Dr. Robert W. Fletcher, chairman of the board of trustees of American University. Subject of the debate will be: "In the opinion of this House, the social and economic arguments for the nationalization of the basic industries are overwhelming."

The British team has a distinguished record. Sir Edward C. Boyle, baronet, is the son of Sir Edward Boyle, for 20 years chairman of the Balkans Committee. Educated at Eton and Christ Church College, Oxford, he is secretary of the Oxford Union Society.

The Hon. Anthony Neil Benn, one of the leading young Socialists, is the son of the Right Hon. Viscount Stanagate, president of the Inter-Parliamentary Union. Educated at Westminster School, he is the president of the Oxford Union Society and was a selected parliamentary candidate for the Labor Party in 1947.

David Harris is the literary editor of the Oxford Isis.

The American University will be represented by Rob Roy Ratliff of Joplin, Mo., and William Wood of Fall River, Mass. Both are veterans of World War II.

I went to the door—
Now I've oodles of noodles
All over the floor!

Take a note, Petunia! When you're cooking noodles, macaroni, rice, or cereals, add a bit of margarine or salad oil to the boiling water. It will help keep it from boiling over the minute your back's turned.

More Sparkle to Diamonds

Why not give your diamond rings and pins a real cleaning so they look their loveliest. Put a little ammonia in boiling water and add fine soap flakes. Scrub the piece of jewelry with a soft hand brush, using the soap mixture and then dry in a linen handkerchief, which has no lint to catch in the settings of the rings.

Ask Anne — Your Questions On Homemaking

What is the difference between crystal and glass? Is there any test you can use to tell which is which? P. W.

Crystal is a form of glassware. It is flint glass containing lead and is hard and brilliant. It can be made quite thin and still retain more strength than most glassware. Fine crystal always rings with a musical sound when tapped, whereas ordinary glass will not.

My small son knocked a fine pottery vase off a desk and it has broken in several pieces. I'd like to mend it at home but want to do a good job of it. What procedure do you suggest? B. H.

Select a dry, sunny day for mending the vase. First, scrub all broken pieces in warm water and neutral suds and rinse in hot (not boiling) water. Wipe the pieces dry and cover the broken edges with real white lead (obtainable in a paint store). Press the pieces together and hold them in place with rubber bands or adhesive tape. Carefully scrape off any surplus lead with a dull knife. Leave the pieces undisturbed for at least two weeks until the lead is thoroughly dry.

I'm planning to do a repair job on the papering in the house we recently bought and wonder if you can help me with a few suggestions. What sort of paste should I use to stick loose paper back on the walls? (It's only loose at the corners in a few places.) What can be done about bulges in the paper where it's apparently come loose from the wall underneath V. S.

Loose edges of wallpaper or torn places can be stuck back with white library paste, somewhat thinned with water. In places where paper has separated from a wall and formed a bulge, a slit should be cut with a sharp knife to admit paste. A brush can be used, or the paste can be forced under with an ear syringe. The slit should be cut along a line in the design. The edges when pasted down will then not be noticed.

I ate some brioche, a sort of bun, in a New York restaurant and it was perfectly delicious. I'd like to make it sometime, and wonder if you can give me a recipe. I. R.

½ to 2/3 cup shortening.
2 teaspoons salt.
¼ to ½ cup sugar.
2 yeast cakes.
¼ cup lukewarm water.
3 or 4 beaten eggs.
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind (optional).

Scald the milk. Add shortening, salt, and sugar, and stir until dissolved. Cool ingredients slightly. Dissolve yeast cakes in the water. Add beaten eggs and lemon rind. Add these ingredients to the milk mixture. Sift flour, then measure. Stir it into the dough. Beat well. Cover with cloth and permit it to rise in warm place for 6 hours. Grease muffin tins. Fill them 1/3 full with dough. Brush tops with melted butter. Permit brioche to rise uncovered in a warm place for 30 minutes. Bake the rolls in a hot oven 425° for about 20 minutes. Remove them at once from the pans. Serve hot, reheating if necessary.

There is an isinglass window in the door to the oven of my stove. It has become so soiled that I can't see through it. What is the best means of cleaning it? T. P. L.

Isinglass or mica, as used in the doors of stoves, can be cleaned of surface soiling by wiping with alcohol. If the soiling has penetrated between the layers of which mica is formed, however, cleaning is not possible.

Is there any sort of cement that can be used in repairing celluloid articles? R. R. K.

Celluloid can be repaired with collodion, which can be purchased at drug stores.

In moving some furniture into our basement, the movers hit a large piece against the concrete washtub and cracked it. Is there any way we can repair it, or have it repaired? G. R.

Pack the crack with soft cotton string smeared with white-lead paste. Several days should be allowed for drying before using the tub. Another method is to fill the crack with a paste made of powdered litharge and glycerin. As this hardens quickly, only a little at a time should be mixed.

Mrs. G. E. K. Receives Aid On $3 Weekly Food Budget

"I REARED three children on a shoestring, so I know just what G. E. K. is up against!"

Typical of numerous phone calls received by the Ask Anne department yesterday was this remark by a reader offering suggestions and sympathy for G. E. K., whose letter about trying to feed her family on $3 a week appeared in yesterday's column.

Miss Dorothy Bovee, nutritionist for the District Red Cross, took time out to figure a shopping list for G. E. K. which comes to exactly $3 a week. It provides enough food (when the milk supply, available from other sources, is included) to give each member of the family of 4 almost 1800 calories per day.

"This isn't a really adequate diet, but you can keep going on it for a few months," Miss Bovee said. "If there are small children in the family, they won't need 1800 calories, so the grownups will have in the neighborhood of 2000, which isn't too bad. Their diet would include essential vitamins, minerals, and proteins in fair quantities."

The list of supplies for the week and their cost if purchased in a Washington chain store, is as follows:

	Amount	Cost
Potatoes	10 pounds	$ .47
Navy beans	2 pounds	.38
Cabbage	3 pounds	.48
Whole wheat bread	7 loaves	1.05
Oatmeal	3 pounds	.33
Cornmeal	2 pounds	.19
Sugar	1 pound	.10
		$3.00

If all these groceries are eaten in the course of the week—plus 7 quarts of milk and half pound of butter apiece—calories will total 1773 a day apiece.

"Cabbage and potatoes bring vitamin C to this diet, which is above the dangerline in this regard," said Miss Bovee. "The cabbage should be eaten raw or cooked only 5 to 7 minuts to preserve the maximum amount of vitamin C. Potatoes should be cooked in their skins to retain as much C as possible. Skins should be eaten, too; there's considerable iron just beneath them.

"THE diet will be low on proteins; it should include some meat to be really adequate," she continued. However, milk, beans, and whole wheat bread all bring proteins to it. Butter and milk provide necessary fat and sugar adds palatibility and calories.

"Whole wheat bread is very important in this diet, because it provides vital iron and vitamins," she said. "I have bakery bread on the shopping list, but G. E. K. can make a considerable saving if she makes her own bread. One and a half pounds of flour costs less than 1 pound of bread. That would give her enough extra cash to sneak a few eggs into the diet. Grade B and C eggs are just as good for cooking, and cheaper.

"The family may lose some weight on this diet, in spite of its high starch content, and they may become more easily tired because of the lack of proteins, but it will do them no real harm if continued only a few months," she said. "It's principal drawback is its monotony. It will take plenty of ingenuity to relieve that, though there are many dishes that can be made with these simple essentials. G. E. K. probably has seasonings—spices, bacon fat, etc.—and some other supplies on hand that can be used to lend variety.

"Turnips, which are cheap, too, could be used instead of cabbage part of the time. She may be able to buy them with the tops on, which gives an additional dish. A few citrus fruits for variety and vitamin C might be worked in, too. I didn't include them because they're not particularly filling when eaten alone, in spite of their fine vitamin content.

"She can do quite a bit with corn meal—make mush, corn pones, hot cakes, etc. The yellow cornmeal is better nutritionally than the white," Miss Bovee added.

AAUW Asks Broadcasts on Marshall Plan

A request that Senate and House committee hearings on the Marshall Plan be broadcast over national radio networks was issued yesterday by the American Association of University Women in a letter to the Senate and House Committee on Foreign Affairs.

Dr. Kathryn McHale, general director of AAUW, addressed the message to Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, and to Representative Charles A. Eaton, chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee. Presidents of major broadcasting companies also were asked through similar messages to broadcast the Marshall Plan testimony and particularly to arrange for rebroadcasts when the largest audiences could listen in.

The AAUW's messages read as follows:

"Because the decision of Congress on the long range European recovery program is of vital importance to every American, I respect fully request on behalf of the AAUW that the hearings before the Senate and House committee be broadcast over the national networks. An informed intelligent opinion is essential to support any action that may be taken by Congress, and every citizen should know the arguments which are being advanced for and against the proposed program."

Silver Spring Man Granted Full Divorce

Testimony in which the name of Beryl English, 54, former general manager of the Montgomery County Liquor Control System, appeared, led yesterday to the granting of an absolute divorce to a Montgomery County man on grounds of adultery.

Plaintiff in the divorce action was Thomas H. Quinlan, 35, of 10123 Pierce dr., Silver Spring, an employe of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co. Through his attorney, Joseph B. Simpson, jr., Quinlan charged his wife, Opal B. Quinlan, 33, had "on divers days and times" committed adultery.

After reading pretrial testimony in which private detectives testified they had trailed English and Mrs. Quinlan to a Charlottesville (Va.) hotel where, according to the testimony, they spent the night, Judge Stedman Prescott granted the absolute divorce decree.

The action was not contested by Mrs. Quinlan. She was at one time a secretary for English, who is married and has four children. He resigned as general manager, secretary and treasurer of the liquor control system last July 1.

Meeting Set To Protest Sewer Fees

A mass meeting to protest recently increased water and sewer connection rates in Prince Georges and Montgomery Counties is expected to draw a large crowd to the Silver Spring Armory at 2:30 p. m. today.

The Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission which recently raised the rates on improved streets from $85 to $575 for each connection has accepted an invitation to attend.

Also scheduled to attend are members of the legislative delegations of the two counties, builders and plumbers, veterans and civic group representatives.

Donald E. Gingery, chairman of the Montgomery County division, Metropolitan Washington Home Builders Association, said yesterday the commission would be asked to delegate its authority to plumbers to make all connections.

School Heads Ordered To Probe Clerks' Bonds

Richmond, Va., Jan. 9 (AP).—State Superintendent of Public Instruction G. Tyler Miller directed division school superintendents today to check into the matter of the proper bonding of school board clerks in their areas.

He advised the superintendents that instances had been discovered where clerks were not bonded for the minimum of $5000 as required by an amendment to Section 656 of the Acts of the Assembly of 1946.

State Auditor J. Gordon Bennett said his office had uncovered a few instances where no bond was being required of school board clerks, but that the "substantial majority" of these officials were properly bonded.

Suffocation Of Baby Held Accidental

Arlington County Coroner W. C. Welburn yesterday issued a certificate of accidental death due to suffocation in the case of a 5-month-old Arlington baby who died in his carriage Thursday.

The child, Gordon R. Cowie, 3d, of 1412 N. Patrick Henry dr., Arlington, had been left in front of a grocery store in the Westover shopping district of Arlington while she shopped.

Dr. Welborn said there was no evidence of negligence in the death of the baby. The baby apparently suffocated after becoming entangled in his blankets.

Authorities at the Arlington Hospital, where the baby was rushed for aid, said that there were no marks on its neck to indicate any other possible cause of death.

Leaverton Reelected by Md. Farmers

Baltimore, Jan. 9 (AP).—Half a thousand delegates to the Maryland Farm Bureau convention packed up their prize apples and chicks and went home to their milking tonight after a business session reelected President Howard S. Leaverton and passed 38 resolutions.

Wilson A. Heaps of Pylesville was reelected vice president.

The rest of the 5000 farmers and wives attending the thirty-second annual convention went home after last night's banquet.

Delegates passed their perennial resolution opposing daylight time for the large Maryland cities and another one asking for 24-hour service on the Sandy Point-Matapeake Ferry.

Horticulturists requested that a Washington, D. C., produce report similar to the Baltimore markets be made available to the Maryland press.

On European recovery, the farmers resolved that "no program of help is good unless it will lessen the need for aid in the future. It is essential that steps be taken to help war-torn nations restore dependable value to their currencies and expand industrial production."

The Associated Farm Women passed their own set of resolutions including ones asking extension of the Federal school lunch program; extending county library services; organizing farm safety courses in schools; curtailing the use of grain for alcoholic beverages; setting up more juvenile recreation centers, and expanding public health services for the benefit of rural Marylanders.

Members of the Maryland Agricultural Society unanimously reelected Leaverton president; Heap, vice president; and T. B. Symons, dean of agriculture at the University of Maryland, treasurer.

PUC Asks Stay Of Hearing on Arnold Lines

The Arlington County Public Utilities Commission yesterday requested "indefinite postponement" of a hearing on a service complaint against the Arnold Bus Lines scheduled before the Interstate Commerce Commission January 27.

The Arlington PUC, which had originally requested the hearing, said action to postpone it was taken to give the busline time to complete its reorganization of management personnel.

The company also plans transfer of a majority of its 25,000 shares of stock from Washington Attorney Manuel J. Davis to a group of investors headed by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Arnold.

A 90-day delay originally had been asked by J. G. Campbell, owner of bus lines in Jamestown and Buffalo, N. Y., who has been employed by a Buffalo bank to take full charge of the Arnold Line.

The bank, the Marine Trust Co. of Buffalo, holds Arnold's promissory note of $999,972, according to ICC records.

According to the PUC "the new management" of the bus line "has demonstrated that steps are being taken immediately to alleviate certain inadequacies" now existing in its service.

In another phase of its management reorganization the line will hire Col. M. D. Mills, former general manager of the Seattle (Wash.) Transit Co. as assistant to Campbell, February 1.

The Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission yesterday announced award of contracts totaling more than $100,000 for water and sewer facilities in Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties.

The largest individual contract, awarded to Intercounty Construction Co. of Hyattsville, provides for construction of water and sewer mains in the Rosewood and Sunset subdivisions, near Four Corners, in Silver Spring. The firm submitted a low bid of $56,446.

Four contracts were awarded another Hyattsville concern, Nickles Bros. Construction Co. They included installation of water and sewer facilities at Kensington Estates, $13,872; water and sewer at Chillum ter., $10,813; water and sewer in Radiant Valley, $17,402, and water and sewer on Whitney st., Brookside Forest, $3859.

The commission also awarded contracts for water mains and sewer installations on Rhode Island ave. in College Park to the L. & S. Construction Co. of Berwyn, low biddre with an estimate of $3535, and for installation of similar facilities in Ravenswood st., Green Meadows, at a cost of $3588.

The commission also announced it had authorized 22 additional water and sewer projects in the two counties and said it would advertise for bids later.

Rakes Associates Called to Testify On Notes Signed

Richmond, Va., Jan. 9 (AP).—U. S. District Attorney George R. Hunrickhouse called a number of former employes and business associates of Hugh N. Rakes to the stand in Federal District Court today to deny to a jury they had signed notes, financial statements and other documents bearing their names and found in the records of the Farmers & Merchants State Bank of Fredericksburg.

The jury is hearing evidence in the case in which Rakes and his wife, Mrs. Lillian Connor Rakes, are charged with aiding William Reeves Gardner, former first vice president of the bank, to misapply some $435,000 of its funds.

State Agricultural Studies Cover Wide Field During Year

Blacksburg, Va., Jan. 9 (AP).—Virginia Agricultural Experiment Station scientists penetrated nearly every branch of the State's agriculture last year in their search for facts that aid the farmer.

Headed by director H. N. Young, the corps of trained researchers at Blacksburg and outlying field stations worked on a range of projects which included something of direct concern to every Virginia farmer.

Work continued in a program of breeding and selection begun in 1942 to develop tobacco plants which will resist such damaging diseases as black shank, Granville wilt, black root rot and mosaic.

Released to growers in 1947 were station-developed strains of flue-cured tobacco which researchers said had proved their ability to produce profitable crops in fields heavily infested with black shank.

A fertilizer distributing and listing machine designed to be built at home by small growers who transplant tobacco by hand was developed and tested at Chatham Bright tobacco field station.

Peanut Tests Begun

Increasing peanut yields by supplying manganese to soils deficient in it was the subject of tests begun in five counties in cooperation with Virginia Agricultural 9xtension Service.

Mice and their control—considered the No. 1 orchard problem by many Virginia fruit growers—was the subject of a detailed study and report by Associate Horticulturist Frank Horsfall, jr., and Research Fellow Benjamin R. Lacy.

A five-year study of the effect of fertilizers on the chemical composition of winesap apple leaves was summarized in a report last year by Associate Plant Physiologist G. Myron Shear.

Other 1947 projects which may benefit fruit growers were one launched to investigate zinc and boron deficiencies in orchard soils and one in which benzene hexachloride showed promise as a spray for controlling the destructive plum curculio grub.

Dairy Feed Experiments

The amount of important Vitamin A and related carotin in milk was found to be increased substantially by substituting dehydrated sweet potatoes for corn in rations fed to dairy cattle, Associate Dairy Husbandman Robert 9. Mather reported.

Economic benefits to dairymen may result from a study which Associate Prof. P. M. Reaves said indicated it may be possible to forecast the milk-producing potentialities of heifer calves by the time they are 4 months old, using the rate of udder development as an index.

One of the more spectacular projects was on nearby Brunch Mountain where agronomist M.. H. McVickar reported corn yields exceeding 90 bushels per acre—nearly three times the State average—were achieved by heavy use of commercial nitrogen on broomsedge land which the owner had abandoned as unfit for farming.

Performance tests throughout the State on 60 commercial hybrid varieties were part of considerable other work with corn.

Soil Loss Studied

Station agricultural engineers, in cooperation with the Federal Soil Conservation Service and the Tennessee Valley Authority, carried on widespread conservation research.

They studied and gathered data on the effects of slope, soil type, rainfall, crops, fertilizers and tillage practices on soil and water losses from the land.

The problems of large acreages of quicksand and of finding ways to fulfill the need for drainage of thousands of acres of potentially productive land also claimed their attention.

In another field, Dr. E. P. Johnson, animal pathologist, reported finding that in laboratory tests in glass the drug streptomycin checked growth of the organism of paratuberculosis, or Johne's disease, a chronic infectious ailment of cattle identified in 16 Virginia counties since 1942.

Dr. Charles Kincaid, associated animal husbandman, reported that a five-year study indicated it is possible for the Virginia farmer to bring a beef steer to satisfactory market finish by the time it is 2 years old.

Poultry research, inactive since 1946 due to lack of personnel, was revived in 1947 with the appointment of Dr. James H. Bywaters as research poultryman. Bywaters is starting a program which includes market research and breed improvement work.

Entomologists studied various insects of economic importance to State farmers. Agricultural engineers launched a program designed to fill the gap caused by an almost total lack of research data on farm housing.

Survey of farm real estate trends and of USES of Virginia public lands were published by agricultural economists. Biochemists worked on nutrition studies. Plant pathologists investigated diseases of corn, oats, wheat and barley with the aim of developing disease-resistant carieties.

The station last year also joined with 11 other Southern States stations in six regional research projects financed by the Hope-Flannagan Act. The Virginia station's share of the projects will conclude considerable market research.

Hospitalization Plan Worked Out For Marylanders

Baltimore, Jan. 9 (AP).—Plan which would pay all or part of subscribers' medical bills when they become hospital patients will be offered to Marylanders not later than October 1, J. D. Colman, director of Maryland Hospital Service Plan (Blue Cross), announced yesterday.

The new organization, known as Maryland Medical Service, Inc., will be a separate corporation, but administrative details will be handled by Blue Cross.

Coleman said rates, which will be determined later, probably will be about the same as Blue Cross.

The plan, he added, has the approval of medical societies in all the counties and the medical and chirurgical faculty of Maryland.

Coleman explained the plan's workings this way:

If a subscriber is a hospital patient in a semiprivate room, the attending physician would accept the rates of the medical service.

If a patient is in a private room, the physician will accept the service rates as a credit against his usual bill.

New Middletown Mayor

Middlton, Va., Jan. 9 (AP).—C. L. Wright, a carpenter, has been elected mayor of this Frederick County town, succeeding Fred J. Larrick, who resigned this week "for reasons of my own."

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Groaner's "B. O." Is Just Part of Show Biz Lingo

O. H. Tomkinson of 9916 Lorain ave., Silver Spring, Md., wonders about this headline which recently appeared above a column written by our Richard L. Coe:

PA CROSBY DONS 4TH B. O. CROWN

District Liner Tomkinson gives evidence of the effectiveness of Lifebuoy advertising as he wisecracks: "Maybe Crosby's best friends haven't told him."

However Critic Coe points out that in this instance "B. O." has nothing to do with soap. It stands for "box office," and serves as a measure of the performer's appeal to the customers.

In other words, it's part of the show business jargon in which "nabes" means neighborhood theaters, "socks" are profitable ventures, "pix" are pictures, and "hix" are just what they sound like.

I think it was Variety which once ran the headline, "Stix Nix Hix Pix." In English that means, "suburban areas are not enthusiastic about pictures depicting rural life."

COMPLAINT DEPT.

District Liners who occasionally drive through the fords in Rock Creek Park report great wonderment at the way they're patrolled.

Sometimes the fords are open, and sometimes they're blocked off. As a general rule, one might say that they're open during daylight hours, when the water isn't too high, and that they're closed at night, or when rising waters have made them unsafe.

But the general rule doesn't always hold, I'm told. There have been many recent instances of fords which were blocked for no apparent reason except that nobody had come around to unblock them.

And there have been other instances when the waters were dangerously high, but the fords were open—again apparently because the person in charge failed to make his appointed rounds properly.

The complaints are herewith referred to the proper authorities for investigation, so that if there's a ford in the future of your family Chevvy, it'll be a safe ford.

GIVE-AWAYS

Ordinarily, I have lots of kittens to give away, but people call up and ask why I don't ever find some puppies that are looking for homes.

But right now, it's the other way around. Two little girls tearfully ask for kittens, to replace pets that were run over, but all I have to offer is:

"Five-month-old part cocker pup, male." (Victor 0315.)

"Cute little black pup, male, mostly cocker, about 7 months old." (North 7378.)

NOTE: I can't "get" a pet for you. That wouldn't be fair to the others. Each Give-Away is published as soon as I get it, and everybody has an equal chance to contact the donor.

PERSONAL NOTES

R. B. Andrews, 1760 Lanier pl. nw.: Thanks for trying to defend me, but it's no use. I flubbed the Leap Year item fair and square.

ADD SIGNS

Fernando Hazera of 1673 Columbia rd. nw. says that a sign on a 14th st. gift shop reminds him of one he once saw in Mexico City.

Our sign says: "Antiques of the Next Century."

NO WONDER! IT'S NOT IN GILBERT AND SULLIVAN

George Garrott of 1106 13th st. nw. is about ready to concede that he owes cigars to Judge Bailey and to me.

In an effort to establish definitely the origin of the "Not drunk is he..." poem, George wrote to that renowned expert on matters poetical, F. P. A. If anybody would know, Mr. Adams would.

Patiently, George waited for a reply to his request for information, please. And at long last a postcard arrived from F. P. A. With no waste of words it stated:

"I don't know."

PIED TYPE DEPT.

James Cooper of 1348 Florida ave. ne. submits this clipping from our morning contemporary:

"... The investigator arrived in Takoma yesterday to question Bird about a 1829 murder he confessed."

Long time getting around to it, wasn't he?

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Final Friendship Train Report

By Drew Pearson

Paris (By Wireless).—Before I left the United States, many newspaper editors and even a greater number of Friendship Train committees asked me to report on the distribution of their carefully collected food and how it was received by the French and Italian people. Before finally leaving Europe, this is my attempt to do so.

Pearson

American newsmen who are impartial, if not critical observers, report that, in general, the people of all France and Italy—even to the smaller towns—seem fully familiar with the Friendship Train and the motive behind it. It has now been three weeks since the first friend ship arrived at Le Havre, but the newspapers still are carrying stories about the subsequent trains and, today France Soir announces that the ministry of education has officially accepted a plan for a friendship contest in the schools of the entire country, in which prizes will be awarded for the 20 best letters on the Friendship Train. These letters will be made into a book to be taken to our 48 States by the two French children who wrote the best letters.

Much credit for the continued interest of the French people in friendship food should go to American news and radiomen under a committee headed by Henry Cassidy of the National Broadcasting Company, who made sure that an American representative was on each of the shorter trains. Because the cities of greatest need fan out from Paris and couldn't very well be reached by one or two trains, several trains were necessary. Lansing Warren of the New York Times accompanied the special train to Nantes where ceremonies were held explaining how the food was collected and the friendly motive behind it. Paul Ghali of the Chicago Daily News accompanied the special train to Lille, while Bob Parker of International News Service went to Rouen where the residents of that shattered city promptly made him an honorary citizen.

In Italy, likewise, John Secondari of the Columbia Broadcasting System, Carl Cortesi of the Rome Daily American, Margo Atwood of the American Broadcasting Company and Rita Hume of the North American Newspaper Alliance patriotically accompanied subsequent friendship trains in order to tell the train's story to every part of that country.

In France, Robert Blake of American Aid to France and Herbert Schenker of the Jewish Joint Distribution Committee worked night and day for a solid month, making sure no kinks developed in distribution of the food.

Before I left the United States many people questioned the efficiency of local European distribution systems. However, my observation is that the French Entr'aid and the Italian Endsi, the chief relief agencies here, are efficient, quick and absolutely honest. They work in complete teamwork with American relief groups.

Various proposals have been made in Italy to thank the American people for the Friendship Train. One, by the Rome newspaper, Momento Sera, suggests that some ancient and highly prized work of art be sent to Washington for deposit in the Smithsonian or National Museum. In Florence, a group of artists propose sending several art gifts to the American people, while an Italian newsreel company, "Incom," is preparing a special newsreel, entitled "Thanks, America," showing the Italian reception of the Friendship Train. Premier Alcide de Gasperi already has contributed 20,000 lire out of his own pocket to help pay the expenses for this film, as did also Foreign Minister Carlos Sforza and their assistants.

Helping to tell the story of American aid have been two pictorial supplements printed in the Italian and French languages by Il Progresso Italo-Americano in New York and by Look Magazine, showing pictures of the train as it traveled through the U. S. A.

Various airlines, including TWA, Pan American, Air France and the Army Transport Command, patriotically volunteered to fly these booklets to Europe in order to get them here in time. Furthermore, they carried them at considerable financial sacrifice since they had to throw off profitable Christmas cargoes. These picture stories, however, have been most popular, especially in Italy, where crowds on station platforms fought for copies of Il Progresso.

Hitherto, of course, it was only the Russians who were smart enough to get publicity when they delivered food.

Alexandria Hospital Rate Left Undecided at Closed Meeting

The rate that Alexandria will pay Alexandria Hospital for the care of indigent patients in 1948 was still undecided yesterday after a closed meeting of the city council and hospital board.

Hospital board chairman David S. Haddock said the meeting Thursday night served mainly to acquaint the council with hospital costs. It was announced that the council and board would meet again January 23 to work out a contract.

Haddock told the council that average daily billings (not costs) for all hospitalized patients in the last six months was 13.69.

In 1947, the city paid 8.81 a day for hospitalized patients approved by the welfare board. Haddock said yesterday he thought a figure between $11 and $12 could be agreed upon.

Average billing for all patients treated in the emergency room in the six-month period was $5.47, Haddock reported. In 1947 the city accepted responsibility for all unpaid emergency cases at a rate of $2 a patient. This amounted to about $6000.

The total billing on emergency cases, however, was $16,000. The hospital had to absorb the $10,000 difference, Haddock said. Later, the council, in special session, unanimously resolved to make no special appropriations in 1948 except in case of dire emergency. Even then, the appropriation must pass by a two-thirds vote of the entire council.

The purpose of the resolution, said Councilman R. Samuel Luckett, who proposed it, was to prevent expenditures not anticipated in the city budget. He said the city now owes over $300,000 borrowed during the last few years to cover special needs.

Elephant Recovers From Hangover Following Voyage

Boston, Jan. 9 (U.P.).—Virginia was getting over an elephant-sized hangover today.

As a matter of fact, Virginia is an elephant, but she was drunk as a coot when she landed here yesterday from Calcutta aboard the British freighter Irisbank.

Louis Reed of Chatman, N. Y., who accompanied the animals, explained that the nine elephants in the cargo had difficulty becoming adapted to the chill climate.

"We gave them rum," he said. "Virginia downed a quart with great gusto, then just reeled over and arrived in port in a comatose state."

Reed said the rest of the elephants handled the stuff like ladies and gentlemen, even including Butch, who is a mere 9-month-old.

Bumper Wheat Crop Seen for Argentina

Buenos Aires, Jan. 9 (U.P.).—A survey by the authoritative newspaper La Prensa today forecast a bumper wheat crop this year, enabling Argentina to ship more than four million tons to needy countries—about double the 1947 figure.

With harvesting due to begin shortly, La Prensa said that although the sown area was 17.3 per cent smaller than last year, expert estimators claimed that the abundance of the yield would result in a crop of about seven million tons. Of this amount, 2,500,000 to 3,000,000 tons are required for domestic consumption.

Plane Crash Kills 3

Pratt, Minn., Jan. 9 (U.P.).—Three men were killed today when their small plane crashed and burned in a field near here. Sheriff Don Christenson said the men were residents of St. Paul.

Choice of Friends

I choose my friends for what they are . . . And what they mean to me . . . And not because some lucky star . . . Has kept them company . . . I choose them not for wealth or fame . . . Or favors they may do . . . But just because they are the same . . . When skies are gray or blue . . . Because they mean the words they say . . . And everything they write . . . And they would never ran away . . . And leave me to my plight . . . They share my fondest hopes and dreams . . . And help me carry on . . . However dark the hour seems . . . When happiness is gone . . . They are the ones with time to spare . . . When I am looking for . . . The kind of friends who really care . . . And last for evermore.
